HOCKEY BRAWL CHARGES EYED

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Criminal charges were being studied here today in the aftermath of a bench-clearing brawl in a World Hockey Association playoff game between Calgary Cowboys and Quebec Nordiques Sunday night.

At 6:16 of the first period, Calgary's Rick Jodzio flattened WHA scoring champion Marc Tardif of Quebec with a high stick after a 30-foot charge. Jodzio then started pounding Tardif with a flurry of punches, knocking him unconscious.

When Pierre Roy of Quebec went to Tardif's aid, both benches cleared and an ugly fight took place.

While the brawl went on, Tardif was carried off the ice on a stretcher and taken to hospital for x-rays. About 20 policemen stepped on the ice during the brawl but did not intervene. Ten players were ejected from the game by referee Steve Dowling following the incident. The referee also sent both teams to the dressing room for a cooling-off period. (See story page 10.)

SPORTS

Victorja Cougars are in hiding today and it's not because they are having trouble in their Western Canada Hockey League playoff with Medicine Hat Tigers. They're doing just fine, leading the six-point series 5-1 after a 5-4 victory Sunday, but owner-coach Pat Ginnell apparently feels the Cats will benefit from seclusion. Page 10.

Goalie Gilles Gilbert got "respect" and responded with a superb effort Sunday as Boston Bruins blanked Los Angeles Kings in one of three opening games in Stanley Cup hockey quarter-finals. Ken Dryden was also slick in the nets as Montreal shut out Chicago and Buffalo's "French Connection" line sent New York Islanders down to defeat. Page 10.

Only young Ben Crenshow was able to mount even a token challenge to Ray Floyd in Sunday's final round of the famed Masters' golf tournament at Augusta, Ga. But Ben's bid was much too little and much too late as Floyd breezed to an eight-stroke victory, matching the Masters record of 17 under par. Page 11.

While the sun shone at Augusta, puddles on the greens at Victoria Golf Club after heavy rains Sunday morning resulted in postponement of first-round matches in the Vancouver Island Open golf tournament. Page 11.

San Francisco Giants, who barely escaped being shifted to another city early this year, have found new fan support and old-time success on the field. In their first two games of the young major league baseball season, the Giants have attracted 62,000 fans and beaten Los Angeles Dodgers twice. Page 10.

We'll Topple Trudeau —Labor

TORONTO (CP) — Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers predicted Sunday that labor will topple the Trudeau government in the union's battle against wage controls.

Addressing a UAW policy meeting, he said a one-day general strike across Canada may be called to protest the controls.

McDermott, a vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, is the first labor leader to call publicly for a general strike against the government's anti-inflation controls.

He said that before a March 22 meeting in Ottawa of about 15,000 trade unionists, he was skeptical of the Canadian labor movement's ability to mobilize in a cause.

"I didn't think we had the capability," he said. "I was wrong. The pendulum has swung.

"In my opinion, we have the capability for a general strike and, before this is over, that is a distinct possiblity."

He said the "ineptitude, brutality and injustice" of the federal anti-inflation board has contributed to labor's deepening antipathy to the controls program."

"I don't know who makes decisions for the board," he said. "It's not chairman Jean-Luc Pepin. He's out making speeches every afternoon and evening.

10% Rate Hike Seen As Truckers Settle

A WEEKEND "SPECIAL" on prehistoric hardware was offered by the Capital Iron store to a dedicated group of bargain-hunters on Saturday and Sunday. Demolition of the firm's Store Street quonset hut revealed that the site was once an ancient Indian settlement. The Provincial Museum made hurried arrangements for a weekend dig on the site by a group of volunteers, who unearthed a number of hunting and domestic implements including projectile points, adze blades and abrasive stones. Bulk of the deposit was a midden containing native oyster, mussel and clam shells.

A 10 per cent increase in B.C. truck freight rates has been predicted by Irwin Froesse, spokesman for 97 transport companies, in the wake of the three-week Teamsters Union strike-lockout.

B.C.'s 4,500 truckers and warehousemen returned to work today after approving a new wage contract which includes a 36 per cent pay increase over two years.

The Teamsters had been off the job since March 23 in a strike-lockout involving 97 companies.

The award includes retroactive pay to Jan. 1 but it will not be collected until the federal Anti-Inflation Board rules on the validity of the contract. If the award is rolled back, the retroactive pay will be reduced a corresponding amount. At present it appears to average about $700 per employee.

Froesse said the higher trucking rates will be necessary to pay the costs of the wage increase. He said the tie-up cost the companies $15 million in lost business and the unions about $4 million in lost wages.

In Victoria, Johnston Terminals Ltd. manager Herb Harris said all 76 employees were back on the job today and the local backlog of freight will be cleared away in three or four days. He said the dispute was costly for both sides.

The agreement calls for an increase of 95 cents an hour in the first year plus 20 cents in fringe benefits. It gives an increase of 90 cents in the second year, 15 cents in fringe benefits and five cents an hour in vacation benefits. Base rate in the previous contract was $6.50 an hour.

The pact gives the Teamsters 10 cents more an hour than had been offered by the companies before the strike-lockout.

The Teamsters voted 84.6 per cent in favor of the new contract Sunday. Union officials said they expected the anti-inflation board will approve the settlement but they did not explain their reasoning.

Scandals, Uncertainty Force Lira to Plunge

Times News Services

The lira dropped to a record low on the Milan foreign exchange market today.

Amid increasing concern over the political situation, the Italian currency dropped one per cent to 891-894 against the United States dollar from 879-891 at Friday's close.

The shaky Christian Democrat minority government was hit Sunday with new corruption allegations involving up to $24 million in bribes from three oil companiies.

Reports in three London newspapers alleged that Esso, Shell and British Petroleum bribed Christain Democrats and members of its three centre-left coalition partners in 1971 and 1972 for tax rebates and other favorable treatment.

One document, purported to come from Italian magistrates who have been investigating the case since the allegations — naming only Esso — originated in Washington two years ago.

The document listed former Christain Democratic premiers Giulio Andretti and Mariano Rumor as among persons "into whose accounts the money was paid."

Andreotti and Rumor are budget and foreign ministers respectively in the Moro government. Andreotti appeared under the code name Anderson and Rumor as Raymond, the papers said.

The previous low was set March 17 when the lira was quoted at 887-889.

It now seems inevitable that early elections will be held in mid-June, and these could make the Communists Italy's biggest single party.

The only question for political observers here is how soon the current minority government of Christian Democrat Prime Minister Aldo Moro will collapse.

Leaders of the ruling Christian Democratic party rejected Communist party leader Enrico Berlinguer's demand for a voice in decisions by Moro's government.

Moro was expected to ask President Giovanni Leone to dissolve parliament at the end of April or a week later, with the election to follow June 13 or 20.

The U.S. dollar opened lower on some European money markets today while the pound recovered slightly.

Beirut Turns Quiet After Violent Night

BEIRUT (UPI) — Free-for-all fighting that raged through Beirut and its suburbs all night died down early today, sparking hopes the country's latest truce might again take hold. On the eastern front, Syrian armored columns were reportedly advancing through the Bekaa Valley.

The latest battles erupted Sunday despite a leftist agreement to extend the 10-day-old cease-fire until the end of the month.

Mortar, rocket and artillery duels between leftist and right-wing militia factions left at least 35 dead and 55 wounded in Beirut. The sounds of battle, which echoed across the city all night, finally died away in the worst suburban troublespots early this morning.

The fighting broke out almost immediately after left-wing parties meeting under Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt issued a statement accusing Syria of invading Lebanon and the United States with meddling where it was not wanted.

PROGRAM LAUDED . . . BUT IT WAS DROPPED

Health minister Bob McClelland praised the Red Cross without realizing that one of the programs he pinpointed had been chopped for lack of funding from his government.

Speaking on the weekend to the annual meeting of the B.C.-Yukon division of Canadian Red Cross, McClelland included the swimming program for disabled persons, supported by the human resources department, in his list of worthwhile undertakings.

The program received $24,000 from the provincial government last year, but was dropped this year when the government decided against funding it.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge today sentenced Patricia Hearst to 35 years in prison for bank robbery and said he would reduce the sentence after she undergoes 90 days of psychiatric study. U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter ordered the 22-year-old newspaper heiress to undergo further psychiatric study at a federal institution before final sentence is imposed.

LEGAL ACTION EYED ON 'STOLEN' PAPERS

Levi Raps NDP Members For SC Welfare Leanings

RICHMOND (CP) — Former New Democratic Party human resources minister Norma Levi has criticized members of his own party for sympathizing with Social Credit welfare policies.

Levi told a Richmond NDP social evening audience that party members should be defending welfare recipients, who, he said, are being exploited by human resources minister Bill Vander Zalm.

When he was human resources minister, "I got some of the dirtiest, snottiest letters about welfare recipients from NDP members," he said.

Levi said he has no apologies for his handling of the portfolio.

"If anybody comes to me and tells me I did too much for people on welfare I'll tell them to go to hell. There's no need to be defensive about that at all."

The government may consider taking legal action against former NDP Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk to retrieve files taken by the MLA after his government was defeated.

Socred Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said today he does not intend to let the matter drop and added: "we may have to go to court."

Phillips accused Lauk of stealing government files in December shortly after the NDP were defeated. He later withdrew the word "stealing" but still contends the files were not Lauk's property to take.

Serjit Olaizola, secretary to Lauk and now Phillips, told reporters Lauk ordered her to pack up all the files in the minister's office and take them to his home in Vancouver.

She said they did not contain personal material but all ministerial correspondence and materials.

Lauk said copies of all correspondence can be found within the department or other government agencies and argues it is common practice for outgoing governments to take such information with it.

"That material belongs to the people of B.C.," said Phillips today.

"I will continue to ask for the files back and do not intend to stop asking for them back," he said.

"I guess if we wanted to take a legal route we could do that and it's not beyond the realm of possibility."

Hijackers Can't Stay

KARACHI (UPI) — A Philippine Airlines jetliner carrying three Moslem hijackers and five hostages landed at Karachi International airport today but Pakistani authorities refused to allow the plane to stay overnight.

Pakistani authorities, reversing an original decision, granted landing rights on "humanitarian and compassionate grounds," officials said. The airline touched down at dawn following a five-hour flight from Bangkok, where the gunmen and hostages had been stranded for three days.

But a civil aviation source said the government was not able to grant a request by airline vice-president Rafael Igoa, one of the hostages on the plane, for an overnight stay due to "security reasons."

The source said 13,000 gallons of fuel were supplied to the aircraft and the crew had drawn up a flight plan to fly from here to Benghazi, Libya.

Igoa told him (a Philippine attache) the hijackers will release the hostages when the aircraft reaches Benghazi. Igoa did not complain about the hijackers' treatment of the hostages.

Nanaimo Strike Firmed

NANAIMO (CP) — Members of Canadian Union of Public Employees, local 401, voted Sunday to go on strike in support of contract demands.

Local 401 members employed by the Nanaimo Regional District voted 69 per cent in favor of striking while local members who work for parks and recreation voted 96 per cent in favor of striking and Nanaimo civic workers voted 84 per cent for striking. Last month, Ladysmith civic workers, members of 401, voted 80 per cent in favor of striking. There are 270 members in the local.

Local 401 is one of three CUPE locals involved in disputes with employers belonging to the Mid-Island Public Employers' Association. The local 401 members have already been locked out because of the strike by the 228 members of local 606, against the Nanaimo School Board, which has closed area schools since last Monday.

The 82 members of the third CUPE group, local 1858 at Malaspina College, have voted 85 per cent in favor of striking but have not served strike notice.

Final exams at the college are to start later this week.

The CUPE contracts expired Dec. 31. Negotiations, including talks with provincial mediator Clark Gilmour, failed to resolve several issues. Wages were not discussed.

Local 606 president Nick Mieras says the dispute centres on the employers' desire to remove a cost-of-living clause from the contract, reduce the number of statutory holidays and disregard seniority except in matters of layoff or recall.

Hydro Estimate Rapped

NELSON (CP) — Former resources minister Bob Williams (NDP — Vancouver East) says that British Columbia Hydro is at least 30 per cent too high in its projections for the province's energy demands.

Williams said in a weekend speech that while he was in office, three separate reviews concluded that Hydro's projections that a 9.2 per cent annual increase in energy output was needed were at least 30 per cent too high.

Williams, speaking at the annual meeting of the Nelson-Creston NDP Association, said that now despite the studies, Hydro Chairman Robert Bonner is claiming that the original estimates are 30 per cent too low.

The former resources minister also criticized the emphasis the Crown-owned Hydro is putting on dam construction. Williams said it now is obvious that the Social Credit government has decided to shelve the Hat Creek thermal power project in south-central B.C.

He said that each of the two Hat Creek coal deposits contains energy equivalent to that supplied by the W. A. C. Bennett Dam, and, in less than 10 years, could supply the province with needed energy for a saving of more than a billion dollars in capital expenditures.

Juveniles Keep Saanich Police on the Go

Saanich police were busy over the weekend investigating reports of break-ins, disturbances and vandalism, including the damaging of one of their own cars.

Four juveniles are in custody and were expected to appear in family court later today, charged with a variety of offences.

A police spokesman said a 13-year-old runaway from Richmond and a 16-year-old Calgary boy face charges of three counts of auto theft and breaking into the Sansbury elementary school in Sidney and Keating elementary school in Central Saanich.

Between $400 and $500 worth of stereo equipment taken from Sansbury and $50 worth of equipment from Keating were discovered Sunday in a stolen vehicle which had been abandoned in Colwood where it had apparently run out of gas.

The spokesman said the suspects arrived on the Island late Saturday and were picked up just before noon Sunday near the Town and Country Shopping Centre. Police were called to the area as a result of a complaint youths had lit a small fire under a railway bridge on Boleskine.

Two other juveniles, both 16 and from the Greater Victoria area, were arrested Saturday as police staked out a cache of goods stolen from Pearkes Arena overnight Friday.

The cache included 340 packages of cigarettes and some chocolate bars which were hidden in the woods near the arena.

Police said an application will be made for restitution to cover $500 worth of damage to the building in the break-in.

Police broke up a noisy beach party in Cordova Bay Friday which had drawn a flood of complaints.

Vandals also struck at Lansdowne Junior Secondary School where four large windows were broken and at Cadboro Bay Elementary School which was broken into. Nothing apparently was taken.

But Saanich police would like most to catch the person who ripped off a roof rack and then stomped on the roof of a police cruiser parked on Cadboro Bay Road Friday evening.

The officers had locked the car and were attending a call at a nearby residence at the time.

When they returned about a half-hour later they found the rack, twisted our of shape, lying on the ground, two red flashing lights broken and the roof caved in.

MURDER CHARGE FOR RODRIGUEZ

DUNCAN — James Rodriguez was charged in Duncan provincial court this morning with two counts of murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Judge W. E. Macleod remanded the 25-year-old U.S. citizen to April 20 to obtain counsel.

Rodriguez was returned to Canada Friday from Springfield, Mo., where he had been held since February on a provisional warrant charging him with the Oct. 24 slaying of James Oldfield, 29, and Pamela Jones, 22, both of the Duncan area.

He had been ordered extradited on March 9 and last Tuesday U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger signed the order releasing him to Canadian authorities.

On his arrival in Vancouver Friday in the company of two Duncan RCMP officers, Rodriguez was whipped through immigration and ordered deported. A police spokesman said the order was a technicality and would likely adversely affect Rodriguez's chances of securing bail.

with it all afternoon and whatever comes out is the decision of the board."

McDermott and other conference speakers said they will not be bound in negotiations by the federal 12-percent guideline for maximum wage increases allowed in one year.

Meanwhile, another CLC official, secretary - treasurer David Montgomery, told a weekend Charlottetown labor meeting the rise of big labor as a powerful political and economic force is a direct result of the wage controls.

"The labor movement of this country has been compelled to reorient its thinking and direction from being primarily an economic organization to one of political movement," Montomery said.

He said the Trudeau government gravely miscalculated labor's position before imposing the controls and its capacity to mobilize opposition.

He blamed federal politicians "traditional lack of interest" in the labor movement for the fact that labor now must make its political muscle felt across Canada.

Montgomery said organized labor has to choose and will throw its support to a political party which will represent labor's interests.

The CLC official said labor now understands, as a result of the controls program and Prime Minister Trudeau's statements on the economy, that the institutions of collective bargaining are no longer relevant to the new economics.

$10 Billion Untaxed

WASHINGTON (WP) — An estimated $10 billion a year in personal income from interest and dividends goes untaxed by the federal government, in part because the Internal Revenue Service does not fully crosscheck existing tax documents.

Each year, U.S. taxpayers get forms from banks, savings and loans and corporations informing them of the savings account or bond interest and stock dividends they have earned. They are told that copies of these (1899) forms also are sent to the IRS.

But until recently the agency has done little to check these forms against individual tax returns to catch evaders or persons who don't file any return at all.

The head of a citizens' tax research group said Saturday that for years after the reporting was first required in 1962, IRS often routinely destroyed millions of these forms after examining only a small sample.

The most recent IRS figures, for 1973, show that Americans reported and paid taxes on some $50 billion in interest and dividends.

According to a public interest tax attorney, it is common knowledge in financial circles that this $50 billion is only about 80 per cent of what taxpayers actually earned.

Thus, another $10 billion to $12 billion a year is not reported. Tom Field, a former Treasury Department attorney who is now executive director of Tax Analysts and Advocates, estimated that the U.S. Treasury loses about $2 billion a year in tax revenues because of this unreported income.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal (Dem. — N.Y.), chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on monetary affairs, has scheduled a hearing Monday — just three days before the federal tax filing deadline — to examine IRS' "failure to effectively implement its income documents matching program, and the large loss of tax revenue as a consequence."

IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander and his top assistants for compliance and collections are scheduled to appear. Both Rosenthal and IRS officials were reluctant to discuss details of the matching program before the hearing.

Field said Saturday that tax and financial experts know IRS has done little to sample the flood of "income documents" on which banks and corporations report interest and dividend income to their customers and the IRS.

"I've been told that for years they either burned those documents or baled them up and sold them as scrap paper," Field said.

In announcing the hearing, Rosenthal noted that IRS has to depend on its matching program to find unreported income "because taxes aren't withheld on interest and dividends, as they are on wages.

10% Hike Looms On Freight

Froesse said the tieup could have been resolved more quickly if the Anti-Inflation Board had taken a clearer stance on wage settlements. By allowing exceptions, the board was creating uncertainty and delays in wage negotiations.

The companies voted 83 per cent in favor of accepting the contract.

Another 1,000 Teamsters Sunday voted 91 per cent in favor of accepting a contract offer involving delivery for building supply companies. They had not been involved in the labor tie-up. This contract provides for an increase of 12 per cent in the first year and 10 per cent in the second year.

It will go to the Anti-Inflation Board to determine whether it is within federal guidelines.

Embassy Attacked

PARIS (UPI) — A homemade bomb by a right-wing group protesting U.S. attitude toward the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jet Sunday night destroyed the steel front door of the U.S. consulate building in Nice, police said today. No one was injured.

HOSPITAL OFFER STILL UNDER WRAPS

Officers and bargaining committee of the Hospital Employees Union today discussed whether to urge 15,000 members to accept an industrial inquiry commission report on a new contracts.

Details of the report from Bert Blair, delivered Friday, were not revealed pending submission of its terms to HEU members at most of B.C.'s main acute care hospitals.

Principal matters at issue are wages, hours of work, shift premiums and vacations. Other matters were settled by negotiation.

The report also went to Health Labor Relations Association, representing 103 hospitals and other medical treatment institutions around the province, including Royal Jubilee and Victoria General hospitals.

Quebec Schools Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Teachers and pupils were back at their desks at most schools throughout the province today but it may be a calm before the storm.

By the time the Quebec government's Bill 23, a law curbing further strikes by teachers for 80 days, came into effect this morning, thousands of teachers had voted to defy the law and to continue protests against stalled contract talks.

Results of a vote by the province's largest teacher union, the 80,000-member Quebec Teachers' Federation, are expected today.

By Sunday night, two teachers' associations — the 6,700-member Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers (PAPT) and the 4,000-member Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers PACT — had voted to defy the law, which came into effect at midnight.

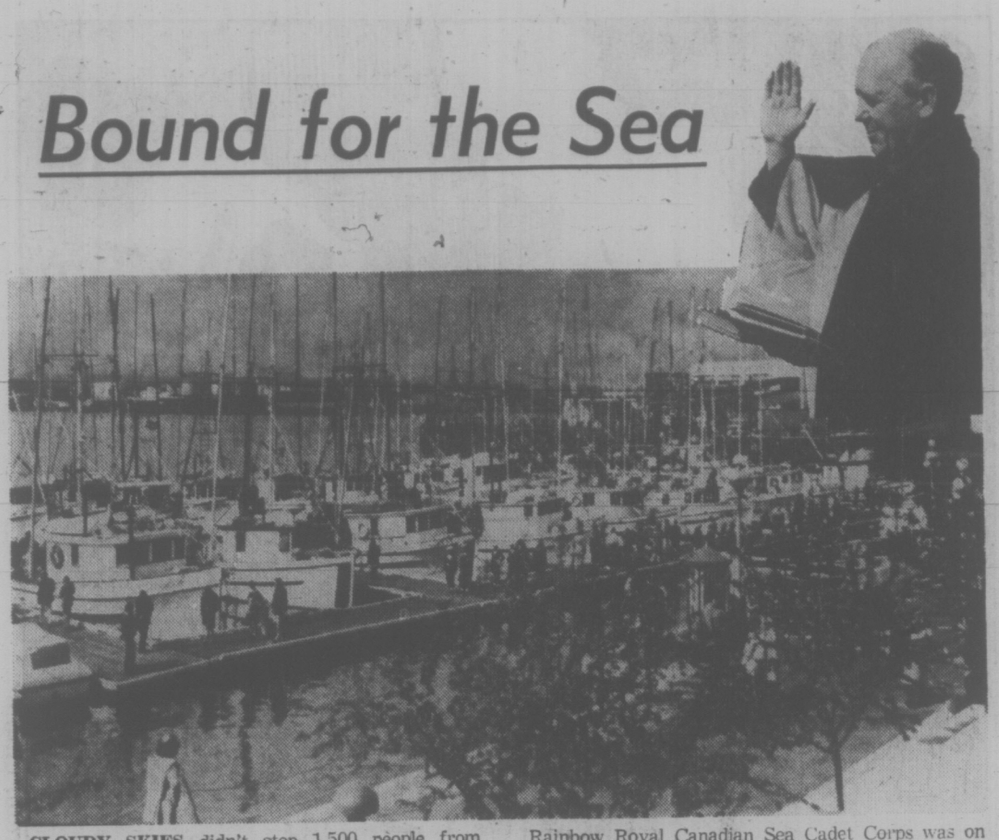
Bound for the Sea



CLOUDY SKIES didn't stop 1,500 people from attending the fourth annual Blessing of the Fleet ceremony in the Inner Harbor on Sunday. The salmon fleet was blessed by Father Robert Crawley, above, and Rev. W. H. Bulloch. The band of the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps was on hand for the ceremony, which was arranged by the Pacific Trollers Association. (See story on the salmon season opening on page 19.) Parksville Swap Urged

The provincial government has been urged to exchange Crown land for 1,200 privately-owned acres bordering Englishman River at Parksville.

Bob Dickhout, president of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, said such a move would be a major step in preserving a beautiful area for recreation and tourism.

His proposal follows a highways department decision rejecting a subdivision plan for the Englishman River property known as the Kirk Tree Farm, and owned by Andal Holdings.

But in making its decision, the department said it would approve the subdivision if the plan was amended.

Mick Ellston, approving officer for the highway department, did not disclose what these amendments should be, but said the present plan is not acceptable.

More than 20 community associations, recreational and conservation clubs from Victoria to Campbell River are fighting to protect the salmon producing river.

The citizen groups also are involved in a fight to save the Parksville Flats, which are being considered for a major commercial-housing development.

An environmental study released earlier this year recommended the river frontage be protected by a wide "leave strip."

It also said the proposed subdivision, which includes 78 12-acre lots on land bordering the river, should be modified to prevent any development which might be detrimental to the river. This included reduction in the number of lots.

Dickhout said the highway department's decision was "not good enough" and showed no concern for fish and recreational needs.

"There is not one river on the east coast of Vancouver Island which enjoys any sort of protection," he said. "Once Englishman River goes, it is gone for ever." We have one chance to save it — an that's now."

He said the government has the land to exchange for the property.

"I don't mean taking lands out of parks as an exchange, but forest lands," he said.

He said the Englishman River Property could then either be reserved as a park, greenbelt corridor or as a Crown tree farm under the B.C. Forest Service.

George Tranfield, 84-year-old president of the Arrowsmith Natural History Society, agreed with Dickhout.

"If we are to maintain our tourist industry, we need places like this," he said. "We need greenbelts with dimensions around our communities."

'Terrifying' Salvage

Efforts to salvage three sunken railway tank cars of chlorine from the Georgia Strait seabed are unnecessary and "rather terrifying," according to University of Victoria biologist Dr. Jack Littlepage.

Speaking at Lester Pearson College Saturday, during a conference whose theme was the effect of man on the ocean, Littlepage posed the question: "What are you going to do with them (the tank cars) when you raise them to the surface, especially if they have holes in them?"

He pointed out that if the cars are left where they are they pose no threat, because even if they are leaking the chlorine reacts with the sea water to form a non-poisonous substance.

However, if the containers were raised and then leaked, there would be the serious problem of trying to control a poisonous gas close to settlements.

Littlepage urged students to rationally consider the facts in such situations, rather than indulge in emotional reactions.

He said 99 per cent of the world's ocean area is unaffected by people and likely to remain so. But the remaining estuaries and coastal shelves are vulnerable to contamination from residential and industrial sources, unless there is an understanding of how various materials work at various depths and in various concentrations, so that satisfactory disposal systems can be designed.

FLIERS SURVIVE

WHITE PASS, B.C. — Two Anchorage men escaped Saturday when their Cessna 172 aircraft crashed near here on a trip from Anchorage to Juneau.

Elroy J. Richardson, 55, suffered a broken arm and face cuts. His passenger, Don M. Brown, also had face cuts.

The downed plane was spotted by a railway crew from the White Pass station on Sunday and the men were airlifted to Juneau by a United States Coast Guard helicopter.

Traffic Accidents

Education Minister Pat McGeer last week was quick to claim a reduction in traffic accidents for the new higher rates charged by the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia and the so-called "safe driver incentive plan," which will provide a rebate next year to accident-free drivers.

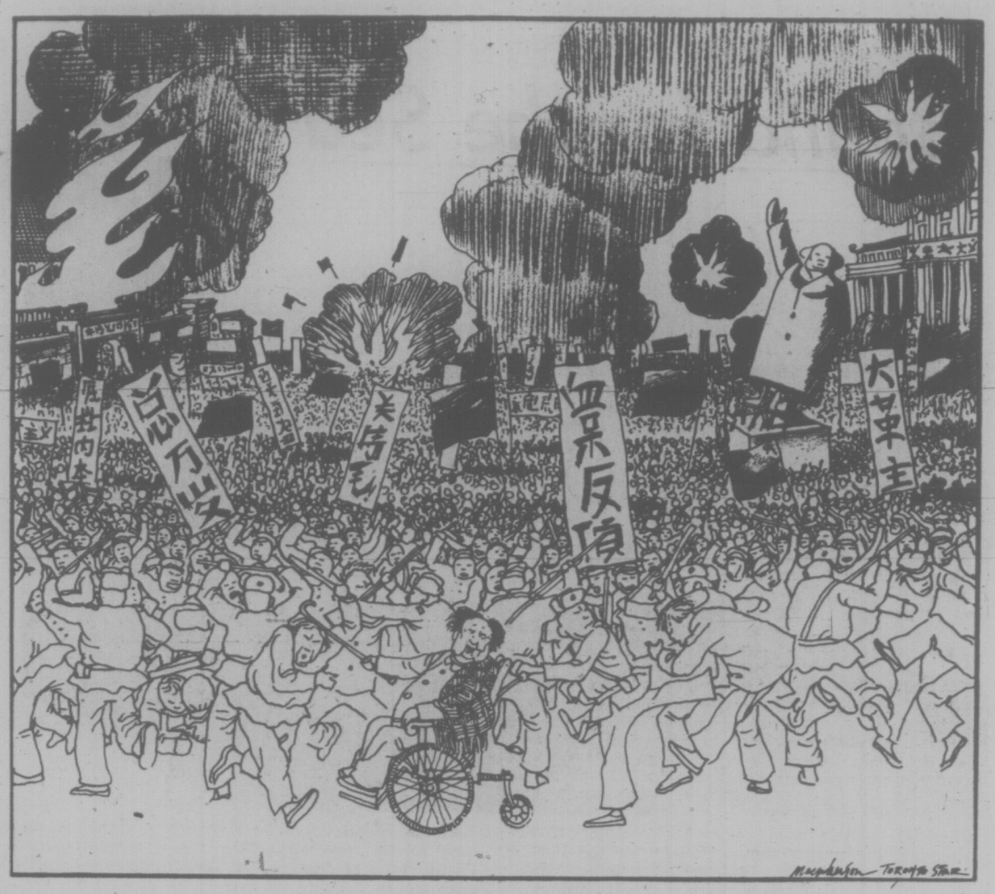
Whether or not there is an actual direct relationship seems questionable, however. There has always been a reduction of accidents in the spring, as statistics compiled by the Motor Vehicles Branch show. Because of longer periods of daylight, better weather and less hazardous driving conditions, the number of motor vehicle accidents drops in the spring and summer. December is by far the worst month for accidents, with double the number recorded in June.

The ICBC president may be correct in attributing the decrease to the new higher minimum deductible amounts and the incentive plan, but that doesn't necessarily mean there have been fewer accidents. He's talking only about accidents reported to ICBC for a repair claim.

Naturally, a higher deductible will mean that fewer accidents will be reported to ICBC. Drivers are not going to report every minor bump and scratch, as seemed to be the case previously, if now they have to pay the first $200 instead of only $50.

But that doesn't mean fewer accidents are taking place, only that they aren't being reported. Similarly, the rebate for drivers under 25 will encourage some young motorists to drive more carefully. It is equally plausible that the incentive merely will encourage other young drivers not to report accidents, since they can qualify for the rebate only with a claim-free driving record.

The two policies together will undoubtedly reduce ICBC's claim-load, but that's not the same thing as reducing the number of accidents on B.C. highways. These measures are a sort of backhanded method of dealing with the problem, when a sincere frontal assault is required — something like real enforcement of the new lower speed limits, a compulsory seat belt law which Ontario credits with a 35 per cent reduction in traffic deaths last month and possibly raising the minimum age to qualify for a driver's licence.



"... a minor political contradiction ..."

You Hinkty Monowangler, You

Speaker Ed Smith has provided MLAs with a list of words previously ruled unparliamentary in the last three years in the British Columbia legislature. The list of words which members may not use to describe one another includes such descriptive terms as hysterical maniac, guttersnipe, paranoid and even Mr. Magoo.

Of course there are ways of getting around the list of forbidden phrases. Winston Churchill, once forced to withdraw use of the word liar, substituted "terminological inexactitude" and still made himself perfectly clear.

Mr. Speaker's compilation, his index of banned bad words, will send MLAs to their dictionaries and thesauruses in pursuit of substitutes. As a public service, we've compiled our own list for the tongue-tied to choose from freely.

Insults seem to be in greatest demand. Under Y we found yop, yoot and yentz, meaning, respectively, rude vulgar fellow, teenage hoodlum or juvenile delinquent and a cheater, one who cannot be trusted.

There are also yaffner and yaffler, closely related but which mean "a dishonest, untrustworthy, sneaky person" and simply, a thief.

Plain old ratfink ("a treacherous, despicable, or unpleasant person") is serviceable, but nurd has a nicer, more polite ring to it ("a contemptible, undesirable or unpleasant person . . . one who is not in the know").

Ethnically, we came up with gowk (Scottish for fool) and gorsoon (Irish meaning "a silly awkard lout)" and greyback (American slang for louse). If all this is ruled unparliamentary, perhaps cony catcher or scowbanker might be acceptable. Their meanings are still deliciously sharp — the former is defined "a deceiver, trickster, a sharper" while the latter is "a loafer, a tramp."

For Canadian content, the lexicon of insults is pretty slim, but we did stumble onto puskaway, which is Algonquin for "he leads him astray."

If you want a real triple whammy to throw somebody off his stride, however, we suggest telling him in a loud voice: "Stop being so hinkty, you hugger-mugger, scrowsy monowangler."

Which tells a person he's "suspicious, pompous, overbearing" while being "slovenly, confused" and also "absurd without being humorous; worthless, useless" and that he monopolizes conversation.

FRANK RUTTER

Dr. K. Becomes a Liability

WASHINGTON — Indispensable is no longer the word for Henry Kissinger.

His political obituary has been written before, of course, and had to be spiked when he wriggled out of a jam. Caution is called for. But there is reason to believe that when the newly-elected president holds his first cabinet meeting next year, the superman of the state department won't be there to be kicked around anymore.

The secretary of state, who warned American politicians at the outset of this campaign year about the perils of engaging in a divisive foreign policy debate, has himself become a major issue, the only real live one so far.

His great power, already whittled by President Gerald Ford, is vulnerable on both sides as the Republicans and the Democrats go about the business of choosing their presidential candidates.

His great glamor, still a draw in the capital, is not so glossy elsewhere.

He's a Survivor

Almost all the major candidates this year have scored points off Kissinger.

Conservatives see him as too soft on the Russians. Liberals deplore his predilection for secrecy. Others are jealous of his ego.

He has been in some sticky situations during his three years as secretary of state, but, catlike, survived them — the wiretapping of his aides, repudiation of the Soviet trade agreement, failure of his "shuttle diplomacy," controversy over Vladivostok and Helsinki, secret agreements with South Vietnam.

But the clarity of U.S. foreign policy, has dimmed this year, amid events in Africa, Europe and Asia, uncertainty in China, and apparent stagnation in strategic arms limitation talks.

A grand Bismarckian concept of world power balances is no longer easy to apply.

The election campaign, the roundhouse swings of Ronald Reagan, the jabs of the Democrats and Ford's fluctuating political temperature have combined to put Kissinger in a holding pattern, the question being when, rather than whether, he will descend.

Despite the latest flurry of defensive denials, there have been a number of signs that Ford might be able to manage without an alter ego.

The president took away Kissinger's job as national security adviser. He demoted the secretary from a leading role in agricultural policy.

Then came the clumsy leak of the remarks by newly-appointed campaign manager Rogers Morton, an old buddy of Ford's, predicting Kissinger's departure by year-end.

HENRY KISSINGER
. . . wants to get out himself?

It was strikingly reminiscent of the hatchet job on Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller by Morton's predecessor, Howard (Jo) Callaway. Shortly after being called "a liability" in the election, Rockefeller wrote himself off a campaign ticket.

In public, Ford staunchly defends his secretary of state. But the muttering of Ford's staff members continues unabated in private. And unless they are amazingly out of touch with their boss, or defiantly bloody-minded, they presumably reflect a prevalent view.

For the president to lose Kissinger right now could only be perceived as a sign of weakness, both abroad and at home. It would seem an unnecessary capitaulation to Reagan and evidence of insecurity.

Yet so long as Reagan's challenge for the Republican nomination persists, or even intensifies if he picks up support in southern and western primaries, such as Texas, Ford will be more tempted to rid himself of "the Kissinger problem."

If the president could only put Reagan away, with a Texas knockout next month, he could at least delay, or reassess, the problem.

But Ford cannot fail to notice, as reporters covering the primaries have seen almost daily, that attacks on Kissinger, not only by Reagan but also by Jimmy Carter and Senator Henry Jackson among the Democrats, are everywhere met with approving applause.

Academe Beckons

Thus, Ford may find that, in the real election campaign against the Democrats, Kissinger is a liability he cannot afford.

There is no sound reason for Ford to do anything before he wins the nomination in August, assuming that he does. At that time his selection of a vice-presidential mate would be a factor, because at least three of the likely candidates could be secretary of state: Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, former defence secretary Melvin Laird or former Texas governor John Connally.

It was Laird, on the night of the Wisconsin primary last week, who intimated that Kissinger himself "wants to go."

Indeed, Kissinger may well find that the groves of academe are beckoning as autumn leaves begin to fall, especially if the forecast is a Democrat in the White House next year.

VICTOR MACKIE

Old Dogs Can't Learn French

OTTAWA — The House of Commons took an unusual step early this month. It passed unanimously a motion under standing order 43. Seldom does the House agree on such motions. They are often proposed but rarely passed because they require unanimous agreement. One dissenting voice kills them.

Thus when a motion is passed it deserves special attention. On this occasion the motion proposed by a Liberal backbencher, Hugh Poulin and seconded by another government backbencher, Lloyd Francis, suggested the federal government negotiate with Ontario authorities to ensure the continuation of French immersion language training in schools in the Ottawa area.

The language motion came hard on the heels of the fifth annual report of the commissioner of official languages, Keith Spicer. He reported to parliament that it was time to think in terms of shifting the emphasis in language training from the federal public service to the schools.

Undoubtedly all across the country this brought sighs of relief and muttered comments of: "I told you so."

Not Working

Ever since the government embarked on its crash courses in French for the public service there have been "horror stories" coming out of Ottawa about the inefficiency and waste of public funds in trying to teach middle-aged members of the civil service to speak French.

Many Canadians must have wondered why the government did not put the emphasis on instruction in the schools so that in a single generation many Canadians would grow up with the ability to speak the two official languages reasonably well. Instead the government insisted on establishing the very expensive program that is costing the taxpayers a bundle adding to the inflationary pressures and not producing the desired results.

The suggestion that the schools be used on the teaching of the second language has in the past been scornfully shot down in flames. Those pressing it have lapsed into silence when they saw those advocating it branded as "bigots." That charge is always dragged out and levelled at outspoken critics of the present bilingualism program.

Now the language commissioner has added his weight to those who want to see French taught in the schools as the best method of bringing about bilingualism. In his report to parliament he proposed a gradual shift in emphasis on the basic language training from the public service to better and greatly extended second language training for the young in elementary and secondary schools.

His "youth option" would be carried out over a 10-year-period. By 1986, he insists, it would give most Canadian high school graduates a basic working knowledge of the other official language. He suggests this could be done for the same amount of money now being spent on language programs.

But Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, who is determined before he leaves office to have the French language thoroughly established in the public service and firmly rooted as an official language of the country, has taken issue with some of Spicer's points. He told students in a question and answer session in Toronto that he could not see a major shift resulting from the language commissioner's report. However he said the report was valuable in pointing out inefficiencies and voicing criticism of some aspects of the government's program.

KEITH SPICER. . . teach the kids

Trudeau recognized that the program is costly. If it was also inefficient and counter-productive in some of its aspects, the government would try to improve them, he promised.

As for the program being shifted to the schools the prime minister said pointedly that Ottawa does not operate the schools. The schools are under the jurisdiction of the provinces. The prime minister wanted no part of turning over to the provinces "billions of dollars to teach French."

The fault in such a scheme as he sees itt, is that even if such a program was launched now those taking it probably would not attain federal deputy minister levels for another 40 years. The prime minster said there was no way the government could tell the people of Quebec "cool off fellows, in 40 years we'll be able to talk French to you."

However he did concede that Spicer may have been right in saying too many public service positions — there are 53,000 — may have been classified as requiring a bilingual capacity. He fell back on the old bogey that is dragged out every time bilingualism is debated. He warned that if the government reduced its bilingualism program it might save money but he was not sure it would "save the country."

Back to School

The House of Commons has, however, passed unanimously a motion that Ottawa negotiate with the province of Ontario to ensure the continuation of French language training in the schools of the national capital. The members of parliament therefore have gone on record as favoring increased emphasis for teaching the French language in the schools.

The future of immersion and other language programs in the Ottawa region is at present in doubt. The secretary of State, as part of the government's restraint policy, has said that the federal government cannot continue indefinitely subsidizing language training programs in the Ottawa area. The experiment in the Ottawa schools had become so popular that it was increasingly in demand.

The Commons in its wisdom is suggesting to the cabinet that it work with the school authorities to ensure the continuation of French immersion language training especially in Ottawa. This is a significant motion that could affect the cabinet's future decisions on bilingualism in the public service and the schools.

The prime minister and his cabinet will have to give second thoughts to changes in the bilingualism program as recommended by Spicer otherwise it could be argued that they are going against the will of parliament. Money poured into the school system for teaching French would be better spent than the wasteful expenditures now made in several of the government's language courses.

Soulless Ghosts

Both the tone and substance of the Times' April 6 story, New Building, Rent Increase Threaten Oak Bay Character, missed the mark. The story quoted me saying our rent had been increased from $265 to $581 a year, and I fear this error took much of the steam out of our protest. Obviously the figures represent a monthly rate, and the point is my family will have $320 less to live on in May and in each subsequent month until we are offered a new five-year lease at a more reasonable rate of increase. (How many Victorians making less than $800 a month could live with this criminal treatment?) In the meantime our customers will be asked to pay inflated prices to help offset this increase. That is unless we're again ordered to freeze our prices to stop inflation. Ironic isn't it?

The tone of the story inferred that Oak Bay council was powerless and uncaring in response to our call for help. Many of my customers read this into the Times' story and relayed their impressions and frustrations to me. I assured my customers I was greatly appreciative of the support, genuine concern for the community and humane attitude displayed by council at Monday's meeting. I have no doubt that Oak Bay council will do its utmost to protect the village atmosphere its citizens cherish. Maybe we should take up the idea voiced by a citizen in attendance at Monday's meeting to designate Oak Bay Avenue between Monterey and Hampshire a heritage village.

Aside from these criticisms I'd like to thank the Times and the two other local papers for focusing public attention upon unfair and inflationary rent increases that will surely force several Oak Bay merchants and professionals out of the village. These people and their customers will be losing much more than their unusually human business relationship. The landlords, developers, speculators and financiers are cutting the heart out of the village. Their greedy dreams of a shiny new high rent heaven are peopled with soulless ghosts.—Joseph Blake, Earth Household Natural Foods, 2248 Oak Bay Avenue.

Deaths and Funerals

Could it be that I am the only reader who would appreciate the return of the deaths and funerals colums to their former location in the Victoria newspapers? Surely it is far more seemly that they be classed with such other statistics as births than to be relegated to different pages and to be included in colunns advertising used cars and properties for sale? In the March 20 Colonist the columns were not even graced by a heading. — H. M. Woodward, Brentwood Bay.

Legal Aid Cuts: No Easy Answer

THE PROVINCE
An Editorial

Since 1970, the cost of legal aid programs in Canada has risen from $10 million a year to $50 million or so, and if that continues the bill could exceed $100 million by 1978-1979. Thus it was inevitable that the new B.C. government would take a long hard look at the rising costs in B.C.

Its decision was to hold the budget for the Legal Aid Society to $5.1 million for 1976-1977, a figure society directors say is at least $3 million short of what's needed to provide "adequate" services. It is forcing a review of just what legal aid services are to be delivered, and to whom. For example, those who are not likely to go to jail or lose employment will probably be all but denied legal aid. That kind of decision is not easy.

In the Future

It may well be that, one day, legal assistance will be delivered and paid for in the routine manner in which medical care is handled. But that day has not yet come. And, given the state of the economy, it will not be here for a long time.

In the meantime, governments can do no more than seek to control the spending. That means restrictions on eligibility for legal aid and on the amount that can be given. And that presents soul-searching problems in how to deliver legal aid services fairly, to those who most need them.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom and others have questioned whether legal aid should be continued for such costly and complex cases as major criminal conspiracies. One drug case, for example, involves 13 legal aid lawyers. The preliminary hearing could occupy 200-odd court days, meaning a legal aid bill of perhaps $250,000. If the accused are committed for trial, that could mean another $250,000 or so.

Met Standards

That kind of money could indeed help a lot of people who face lesser charges or run-of-the-mill civil cases and have a real need for legal aid. But how can one fairly deny legal aid to a man facing a serious charge that could send him to jail for life, when he qualifies for legal aid?

Despite what the Legal Aid Society calls an "intensive" investigation, hunting for evidence of assets and income, most of the accused in that major drug case met the standards of eligibility for legal aid. Maybe the standards can be further tightened, but the Legal Aid Society has not been handing out legal aid in blanket fashion to anyone who asks. It may suspect that an applicant has hidden income or assets, but unless it can prove it, how can it fairly deny him legal aid?

13 on Same Case

It's easy to agree with Provincial Judge Les Bewley, who said it "turns my hair grey" to see 13 legal aid lawyers in the same courtroom on the same case. Perhaps the accused could, and should, get by with two or three lawyers shared among them. But if the quality of the defence might suffer, then surely the benefit of the doubt must be given to a man who faces a lengthy term in jail. And the kind of case where 13 lawyers are involved is rare. In most cases there is only one lawyer.

Mr. Gardom has appealed to the "altruism" of lawyers to provide more services free to the deserving. Many lawyers either do this already, or deliberately don't try to collect on some bills. We hope more will heed Mr. Gardom's appeal; but how far can we rely on donated services in this complex society bound by so many laws, rules and regulations?

Minimal Service

Private insurance schemes offering coverage for legal services may provide a large part of the answer in future. But the few schemes that are in existence have met with mixed success, and for one reason or another have their main impact in relatively minor areas such as dealing with wills and giving minimal legal advice.

The legal aid cutbacks, restrictions and methods of saving proposed to date, by governments and legal aid groups across the country, all carry the risk of denying legal assistance to those who really need it, and who really can't afford it on their own. And that tends to perpetuate the law as something of what former attorney-general Alex Macdonald calls "a rich man's instrument".

There are no instant solutions. We can only hope that, in seeking to control spending on legal aid, governments will not make cuts for the sake of making cuts and unload the burden onto those who really need help.

Ulster Soon 'Economic Wilderness'

By BERNARD WEINRAUB

BELFAST — A prosperous Roman Catholic businessman sat in his busy office the other afternoon sipping a cup of tea and speaking quietly. His son was moving to England in several months; some neighbors had just purchased homes in Dublin and were leaving Belfast; his wife was taking sedatives and urging him to pack up the family and depart.

"In 10 years it's going to be an economic wilderness," he said. "Three or four years ago businessmen still had some hope. We don't have any now."

Although such problems as unemployment, bigotry, violence and the economic slide seem remoreselessly interlocked in Northern Ireland, the gloom has deepened this month in the aftermath of Britain's decision to cut back 2,000 defence jobs in this province and the disclosure that joblessness had reached a 36-year record.

Beyond the economic gloom, numerous Protestants and Catholics alike are convinced that Britain's cutbacks and the over-all policy of Westminster are plain signs — slow, perhaps subtle — of financial and political withdrawal from Northern Ireland, a move that the British strenuously deny is in the works.

"People are saturated with Northern Ireland," said a senior British civil servant in Belfast. "There's a weariness, a boredom about the place in Ireland and in Britain, but there's no active pressure to get out and we're certainly not contemplating withdrawal."

A senior Protestant clergyman who asked that he remain anonymous termed the British policy "aversion therapy — forcing Northern Ireland people to have good reason to turn from the British in hopes that in a few years people will be so frustrated and angry that they'll want devolved government (limited self-rule) at any price."

At this stage, Britain has extended its direct rule over the province indefinitely, following the refusal of most Protestant politicians to accept power-sharing with Catholics. The British, with Catholic politicians, insist that any local government must represent the Protestants, who have a two-thirds majority, and the Catholic minority.

British civil servants make it clear that the government's options have withered and that direct rule will remain the policy as long as compromise seems out of the question.

"It's perfectly clear that they're going to make us simmer and stew, make us suffer for our sins, and we bloody well deserve it," said a politically moderate Protestant newspaper editor. "They want to bring people to their senses; maybe they will."

Two weeks ago Britain announced the closing of three service depots that will cost 2,000 skilled civilians their jobs, raising the total of government-supported jobs that will be dropped to 5,000 in the next year. Unemployment, hovering near 10 per cent, may climb to 12 by the end of the year. There have been more than 50 factory closings during the past few years, according to one report. Emigration totals about 11,000 a year, compared with 4,000 in the nineteen sixties. Many of the emigrants are college graduates with skills.

Since the Second World War, Ulster has sought to shift emphasis away from its traditional and fading industries, textiles and shipbuilding. But new industries, such as those producing artificial fibre, have failed to take up the slack, in large measure because of the violence that has racked the province for seven years.

"Very few people think that Britain has an active plan to get out of Northern Ireland," said a moderate Catholic politician, "but very few think that Britain has any long-term interest in Northern Ireland and that she doesn't want to get out as quickly as possibly."

Jimmy Carter Is No Dummy

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

At least this much is clear by now: Jimmy Carter is the most interesting new political phenomenon the United States has seen in a long time. His appeal crosses some of the old lines of party and ideology. He has cooly withstood the worst that critics could throw at him, and polls show his national support deepening.

To liberal-minded people in Vermont or New York or Wisconsin he may be an unknown quantity, unsettlingly so, especially because he is religious — though in fact he shows no signs of zealotry. But beyond that, people wonder, about his inner political values. They have no intuitive sense of the man.

A vote for Jimmy Carter is no doubt, to a degree, a leap in the dark. A vote for possibilities. But in the many words he has spoken over these last months one may begin to perceive clues to the inner man.

In an interview with the Washinton Post, for example, he was asked about amnesty. Carter has said he would pardon all those who fled the country rather than serve in Vietnam.

Why he speaks of pardon instead of amnesty is not very clear. He has also said that he found it hard to arrive at that position. He was asked why.

"In the area of the country where I live," he replied, "defecting from military service is almost unheard of. Most of the young people in my section of Georgia are quite poor. They didn't know where Sweden was, they didn't know how to get to Canada, they didn't have money to hide in college. They thought the war was wrong. They preferred to stay at home, but still went to Vietnam. A substantial disproportion of them were black . . . They were never heroes, and I feel a very great appreciation to them . . .

"So for a long time it was hard for me to address the question in objective fashion, but I think it's time to get the Vietnamese war over with. I don't have any desire to punish anyone. I'd just like to tell the young folks who did defect to come back home, with no requirement that you be punished or that you serve in some humanitarian capacity or anything. Just come back home, the whole thing's over . . . "When I issue the pardon if I'm elected president, my first week in office, I don't intend to criticize the young people who left the country. I'd just issue a blanket pardon without comment."

There is enough of the man in that to distinguish him from his main opponent. Sen. Henry Jackson is an absolutely known quantity. He has been a liberal on domestic issues, as he emphasizes. But he was Richard Nixon's first choice for secretary of defense, and he was a last-ditch supporter of the Vietnam war.

On amnesty, Jackson says he would see some way to get the young men back, but not unconditionally: "It would not be fair for those individuals who violated the law to be officially excused from penalty while others, often at the risk of life, accepted the obligation of service."

Lately, he has met and survived what have to be called tough audiences: Small groups of the powerful and the articulate in Washington and New York. My impression of one such occasion was that the listeners were struck most of all by how smart Carter was — sharp in his political estimates, informed on a variety of foreign and domestic issues. In an article in New York magazine, Richard Reeves said he had found that "many national reporters believed he was the smartest politician they had ever covered."

Reeves, a skeptic, was evidently impressed himself. So have been such other nonsoft touches as Mike Royko in the Chicago Daily News and Meg Greenfield in Newsweek.

The sudden realization that Jimmy Carter has to be taken seriously is a little reminiscent of John Kennedy's emergence in 1960. Many established figures had written him off, too, as an outsider of insufficient weight. Then his talents as a campaigner made themselves felt. Not that Governor Carter is similar to the Senator Kennedy of 1960. He lacks the disarming Kennedy self-mockery, seeming more single-minded in his focus on politics. On the other hand, he is intelligent in not just the political sense: He reads more, and more widely, than any recent American politician. Some of the critical things said about Carter by unfriendly commentators have fallen of their own weight. The charge that he is a covert racist is hard to maintain when he wins heavy support from blacks. He is no more vague on issues than other candidates; he just refuses to give one-sentence answers to complicated questions. His ability to attract voters of different professed ideologies, while novel, is not exactly a bad thing for a country that has been so divided. What remains to trouble a number of thoughtful voters — a substantial number, I would guess — is something else. A reader in Shaftsbury Hollow, Vt., Mrs. Frank L. Oktavec, put it well in a letter. "Carter's virtues are apparent," Mrs. Oktavec wrote: "Intelligence, tenacity, competence. Still, he is an enigma — not because he's waffled on issues but because he's a specimen we've never known."

The Diefenbaker Sneer

One hates to speak ill of the few semi-deities we have in this country, but John Diefenbaker is becoming increasingly tiresome. Consider, for instance, his recent, snotty remarks about all those Canadians who've a right to believe their own government has honored them with membership in the Order of Canada.

Diefenbaker's sneers were part of a performance he put on in England for the titillation of newspaper readers, assorted lords and ladies, ambassadors, ex-prime ministers and other luminaries of British society. He'd gone there, of course, for the same reason other important (and sometimes self-important) Canadians went to London in earlier generations: to bend a knee before the monarch, to accept an honor only royalty could bestow.

The Queen, with a touch of her wand, turned him into a Companion of Honor. Presto. But before that, at a lunch in the Palace of Westminster, he regaled what the press called "his fellow parliamentarians" with reminiscences of his career, about his early days on the Prairie hustings, about Sir Winston Churchill.

I'll give him this: whatever he said, it apparently worked in London. "He had us in stitches," a luncheon guest said. And perhaps the old jokes are the best jokes, for new audiences. Nightclub comedians are aware of this convenient truth and, as an entertainer, the boy from the colonies certainly made good in his 80th year.

Now I don't begrudge him this success. I do not understand why certain Canadians, in our own time, treasure honors they can acquire only in British palaces; but, nevertheless, Diefenbaker did not seek the insignia of a Companion of Honor and it would be ludicrous to have expected him to turn it down. If it adds an ounce to his happiness, good for him.

At the same time, it scarcely gives him the right to sit in London and tell reporters that the Order of Canada, which he obviously regards as inferior to his own new prize, is a "kook order" dominated by unworthy members. He said that only about 15 per cent of the 800 members of the Order of Canada had the qualifications for such honors.

Myself, I wouldn't cross the street to hear such stories from Diefenbaker again. At the Canadian Conservative Leadership Convention in February, his speech — freighted with cliches, ominous whispers, familiar theatrics and hoary anti-Grit jokes — strove to impose a slogan on the party. As originality, the slogan was a real snapper: "Freedom." Pause for effect. Yes, "Freedom."

It all sounded about as fresh as anecdotes about Sir John A.'s boozing habits and I've a hunch that, if Diefenbaker had thought the British had ever heard of Sir John A., he'd have laid some of those zingers on the crowd at the palace, too.

Maybe he did. Maybe he also told them that the only thing protecting the Prairie Tories in the Thirties was the Game Laws. Maybe he told them how it was that, as a humble newspaper carrier-boy, he met Sir Wilfrid Laurier on a railway platform. Maybe he described some politician's change of heart as the greatest conversion since Saul on the road to Damascus. Maybe he even told them about Lucien Rivard going over the prison wall in 1965.

DIEFENBAKER . . . who's the kook?

His host in London, the Canadian high commissioner Paul Martin, was recently named a Companion of the Order of Canada and Diefenbaker was careful to include him among the deserving 15 per cent. May we presume that, if he had not, the atmosphere around the Martin household would have been less than warm during the remainder of Diefenbaker's sojourn in British society?

Diefenbaker has turned the phrase "My fellow Canadians" into a trademark of his oratory but, somehow — in the flattering atmosphere of upper-crust London — the old populist, the old master of the grass-roots accolade to the humblest among us, seemed to forget that the members of the Order of Canada are his fellow Canadians, too.

Though they'll never be so exalted as actually to receive a gen-yew-wine, bona fide, solid gold, gosh-all-wonderful insignia as one of the Queen's very own, superspecial, 65 Companions of Honor, they're still pretty good folk.

And if Paul Martin was not among the several hundred undeserving and presumably kooky members of the order, who was? What Nova Scotians for instance, did Diefenbaker have in mind?

Henry Hicks, president of Dalhousie University? Sister Catherine Wallace, chairman of the Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission? Carrie Best, pioneer champion of black peoples' rights down here? Paul-Moise Fournier, masterful skipper of Arctic ice-breakers? David Stevens, Lunenburg genius of schooner-building and schooner-racing? Helen Creighton? Ernest Buckler? Alex Colville?

I know a couple of these people even better than Diefenbaker knows the Queen. They are not unworthy kooks. But it's possible the Order of Canada inspires his contempt because he himself had nothing to do with its foundation. Lester Pearson did.

Still, if Diefenbaker truly believes it's a minor-league order, he should try to remember that your true big-leaguers don't go overseas and knock the minors back home. Or, as his new British Companions might put it, it's hardly cricket, old boy.

Fire Suspects Arrested

RICHMOND (CP) — An RCMP spokesman said Sunday that two persons have been arrested and face arson charges in connection with a fire that caused $2 million damage at the R. C. Palmer Junior Secondary School Saturday.

The spokesman said a 17-year-old girls was to appear in provincial court doay and a juvenile boy was to face charges later.

Meanwhile, Michael Byrne, Richmond's fire chief, said that damage to the school cculd have been only $5,000 if the school had been built to proper fire prevention standards.

Byrne said the school should have been built of concrete instead of wood and the school should have had a better sprinkler system.

Bob Wilkinson, secretary-treasurer of the boad, said, however, that budget restrictions prevented such measures.

Wilkinson also said he believes the school is still covered by a $1,000 deductible insurance policy, although Education Minister Pat McGeer recently announced that a new $1 million deductible insurance plan will replace the current coverage.

Students from the school Wednesday will begin to attend shift classes at a nearby school.

Impossible for Killers To Keep Quiet—RCMP

LANGLEY (CP) — Const. Ron Leibel of the RCMP says that a basic premise in handling unsolved murders is that "you can never give up hope."

"I don't think it's possible for a person who's committed such a crime to keep quiet about it," says Const. Leibel, describing the detective work that enables police to discover wrongdoers sometimes months after the crime is committed.

"Someday he's going to tell his wife, girl friend, parish priest or parents. And then we'll hear about it somehow."

It has been 15 months since the first of three murders took place here.

Barbara Ann Larocque's body was found Dec. 13, 1974. She was a Vancouver resident who worked as a dancer in a Vancouver nightclub. When found, she was fully clothed and it is not believed she was sexually assaulted.

The battered body of Debbie Roe was found Feb. 22, 1975, in bushes about 1½ miles from where Larocque was found.

Debbie and her sister were a budding country and western singing duet. An autopsy determined that she had been sexually assaulted and savagely beaten.

Police believe she began hitch-hiking home after her car broke down on the Fraser highway.

Then, on June 3 last year, the body of Susan Inez Musekamp, 17, was found on Brae Island near Fort Langley. She went missing May 10 and because her body was discovered two months after her death, police were unable to determine wheher or not she had been assaulted.

The police, however, are also treating her case as homicide.

Const. Leibel says police have the best chance to solve a murder within two weeks of the slaying because after that period people have difficulty remembering facts and figures.

However, he says, information about the three cases is still being received — enough to fill a complete file drawer in each case — and "it would be absurd to adopt the attitude that we're not going to catch the killers —, there's just no damn way we're going to give up."

Pea-Pickin' Price Not High Enough

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fraser Valley pea growers have voted to refuse to produce crops this season unless the Coast Vegetable Marketing Board agrees to set the farm-gate price of peas at last year's level.

James Harris, secretary of the Fraser Valley Pea Growers Association, said the growers' costs have increased eight per cent since last year, but the marketing board has still decided to lower the farm-gate price by 11 per cent, thereby effectively asking growers to take a 19-per-cent reduction in profit.

Harris said he can't remember a similar decision passed by a marketing board during the recent years of inflation.

"We're not growing for that price," he said. "We'll grow grain. We're in this to make money."

Harris said the growers are willingto absorb the eight-per-cent increase in costs if the marketing board will agree to a farm-gate price equal to last year's.

Adrian Prinse, past-president of the association, said the price last year was about $234 per ton.

FUEL DEALERS ORGANIZING

VANCOUVER (CP) — The annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Agents Association of British Columbia has decided to distribute union cards to its members in a fight against the major oil companies.

Association president Fred Persacco Saturday said the first move towards forming a union was taken because the oil companies have an absolute power over independent distributors of oil and gasoline.

Persacco said the companies are able to close bulk plants overnight, reduce commission unilaterally and take other actions which can ruin an independent agent's investment.

About 35 members of the 170-member Association voted Saturday to send out cards for the oil and chemical workers union. Directors later decided to send them only to members, and not to employees of the members.

"We're waiting for legal opinion on the relationship between ourselves and our employees," Persacco said. "If we went into a union meeting our employees could overrule us (if they were members). This was one of our biggest concerns."

Persacco added that the association really wants legislation to license agents and provide for arbitration of disputes with the companies, but it is prepared at present to become a union.

Trollers to Fight Closure

OLYMPIA (AP) — The more than 8,000 men and women who make their living troll fishing for salmon on Washington's offshore waters want to ply their trade in June and are preparing to go to court to secure that right.

That was the message more than 600 trollers gave Don Moos, fisheries department director, here during the weekend.

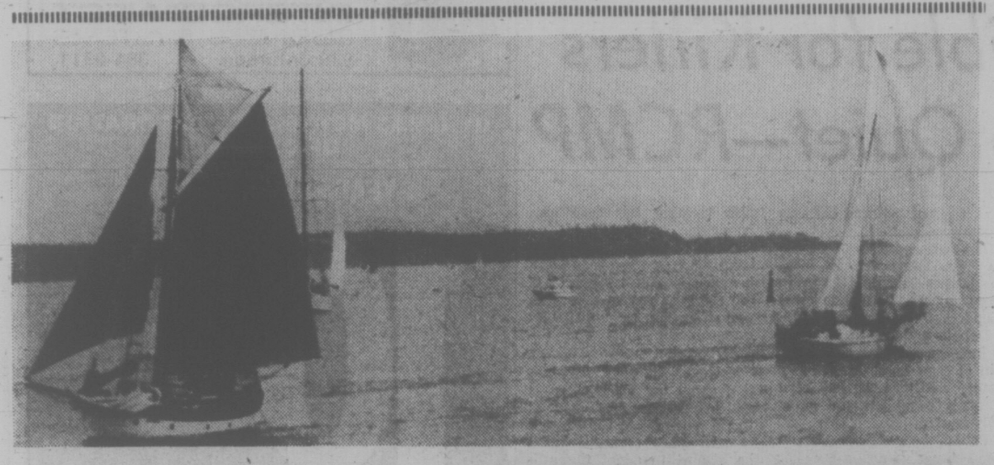
Bob Gay, representing the Northwest Trollers' Associations, said Sunday a request for an injunction already had been filed in Thurston Country Superior Court and that it might be exercised as early as today.

The regulations, or a modified version of them are scheduled to be adopted Wednesday.

A public hearing was held Sunday on proposed fisheries department regulations that would be 12 weeks off the normal trolling season.

The proposal calls for a season beginning May 1 and ending May 31 for all species of salmon except coho. The waters would then be closed during June and re-opened July 1 for a 77-day season for all species.

The season no runs from April 15 through Oct. 31.



SOMETHING NEW on the sailing scene took place on the weekend when traditional gaff-rigged boats held a race off Sidney. Some of the old-timers are seen finishing off the Sidney pier, at top. Winner of the race was the 28-foot schooner, Toadstool, owned by the internationally-known naval architect Bill Garden. He is seen with Bernadette Mertens with the first prize, a bottle of rum.

Ocean Floor Auction

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — More than a million acres of Gulf of Alaska waters and ocean floor go on the auction block Tuesday in what many experts predict will be the largest offshore lease sale in United States history.

Interior Secretary Thomas Keppe has estimated that up to $1 billion may be offered by the 70 major oil and gas companies which have signed up to bid for more than 180 tracts involved.

If that estimate proves accurate, bids in this sale will eclipse the $900 million put on the auction table in 1969 by companies rushing to develop Alaska's oil-rich Prudhoe Bay.

A 798-mile steel pipeline is half completed to transport almost 10 billion barrels of oil from Pudhoe to a southern port on Alaska's coast. From there, it will be shipped to the southern 48 states.

FEA Not Endorsing Any Proposed Pipeline

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — The president of a consortium with plans of building a $1 billion pipeline from the Puget Sound region near Seattle to Minnesota says he has received assurances the U.S. Federal Energy Administration is not endorsing any proposed pipeline, just looking at thm all.

D. Michael Curran of Great Falls, president of the Northern Tier Pipeline Co., asked FEA Administrator Frank Zarb for an explanation of remarks by agency officials last month. Some of the officials were quoted as saying a "viable" line would be one proposed to run from Prince Rupert to Edmonton, connecting with lines entering the United States in northeastern North Dakota.

Curran said he received a letter from Zarb recently in which th eFEA official said: "We want to assur you that the FEA does not have a position favoring or endorsing any specific alternative for supplying oil" to the northern U.S.

Zarb said the FEA has let a contract to a Texas firm to study the refinery supply to Northern Tier states "after the phaseout of Canadian imports."

Six-Month Voyage by Canoe For Hawaii's Celebration

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Hawaii will celebrate the U.S. bicentennial by turning back the clock a millenium, to a time when primitive Polynesians boldly sailed in the Pacific guided only by stars and waves.

Planning of the most adventurous of the country's birthday celebrations, members of the Polynesian Voyaging Society intend to sail a double-hulled canoe on a 6,000-mile round trip between Hawaii and Tahiti.

They are to start soon on a journey that might last six months.

Sailing without modern navigation equipment, the voyagers hope to retrace the legendary migration route of their ancestors, who reached Hawaii from Polynesia as early as 500 AD.

Like those early voyagers, they will eat dried bananas, sweet potatoes and fish; carry their water in gourds; take along such domestic animals as chickens and dogs, and food plants such as taro, breadfruit and sweet potatoes.

Polynesians did not just drift to Hawaii, says the Voyaging Society President Ben Finney, but deliberately set out across 3,000 miles of ocean without instruments, maps or even the assurance that land lay ahead.

THOUSANDS OF PILGRIMS IN PALM SUNDAY WALK

JERUSALEM (AP) — Thousands of Christians walked the route of Jesus's triumphal entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday, opening Easter Week in a colorful festival of hymns and chiming bells.

Waving palm fronds, the traditional form of greeting in Jesus's time, pilgrims from the Americas, Europe and the Far East followed the hallowed two-mile road from Bethany to the Via Dolorosa.

With them marched Arab boy scouts, nuns and monks in flowing robes, and the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. J. J. Belletritti, dressed in white and crimson garb.

The peal of church bells mingled with cries of "Hosanna" and hymns in English, Arabic, French, Japanese and German.

Palm Sunday commemorates Christ's entry into Jerusalem five days before his crucifixion.

Huge Soviet Arms Buildup

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union will install more than 200 new intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) this year and will continue high production of numerous missile systems for the foreseeable future, military analysts say.

Any further agreement in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) between the Soviet Union and the United States in Geneva to restrict future ballistic missile deployment is unlikely to have any immediate effect on production.

This is forecast in a document on military production in the Soviet Union prepared by the British defence ministry and circulated to members of Parliament here.

Based on NATO and other Western intelligence estimates, it paints an impressive picture of the Soviet nuclear and conventional military power.

It claims that during this year the Soviet Union will also bring into service 1,000 combat aircraft, mostly swing-wing types; more than 700 helicopters; 3,000 tanks; 4,000 armored personnel carriers and up to 10 nuclear submarines. Six of the submarines will each carry 12 to 18 ballistic missiles of 4,800 miles range.

The Soviet Union is also building large surface ships and this year will have in service its first true aircraft carrier, the Kiev, which Western experts believe will have a displacement of about 40,000 tons.

The document says Soviet work on anti-ballistic missiles (ABMs) has required a considerable effort in terms of resources. The ABM complex includes 64 launchers around Moscow.

A major program in under way to improve both the Soviet and other Warsaw Pact air forces, the document adds.

A new family of sophisticated tactical swing-wing aircraft is under production.

One, the Fencer, is described as the first Soviet fighter designed specifically as a fighter bomber for ground attack missions, and is in squadron service.

Another, the Flogger, which was first seen by Western experts in 1967, has undergone considerable development and improvement.

Older designs in the interceptor force are being replaced by more sophisticated types, such as the Foxbat and Flagon.

Fitter C is a variable-geometry swing-wing development of the fixed-wing Fitter A. It is the only example in the world of a fixed-wing aircraft being developed into a variable geometry design, the document says.

Western analysts consider that this is a good example of the Soviet practice of developing an existing type rather than designing a completely new aircraft.

The Backfire bomber — a major point of controversy in the current U.S.-Soviet SALT negotiations — is the fourth swing-wing design. Some 50 have been built to date with current production running at two a month.

The original 1970 design has been modified and the operational variant now is know as the Backfire B, with an increased wingspan.

Soviet tank production in recent years has averaged 3,000 annually. Analysts say this enables Moscow to maintain a force of some 40,000 battle tanks and provides for a quick response to emergency demands, as was the case in the rapid re-supply of Syria and Egypt after the October, 1973, Arab-Israeli war.

Completion of more than 90 nuclear-powered submarines in the last 10 years indicates the priority given to submarine construction, the document says. More than one-half of these are delivery platforms for seaborne strategic missiles. During the decade the Russians also built about 30 conventional submarines and 40 major and 70 smaller surface fighting ships.

Leading shipyard for many classes of submarines is Severodvinsk, now the world's largest submarine building-yard despite its location in one of the most inhospitable regions.

Severodvinsk is only 350 miles south of the Arctic Circle on the White Sea, and is completely frozen for six months of the year.

The second submarine building yard is at Komsomolsk on the Amur River in the Far East. It, too, is ice-bound for almost half the year.

In analysis of production methods, the paper said that production costs were cut by standardization of equipment and components across classes of submarines and surface ships.

"Such standardization is party responsible for the relative speed with which yards are able to complete vessels, and very important in an industry which usually takes 10 years from concept to a worked-up unit — to keep pace with the technological advances and changes in design philosophy," the document concludes.

Announcing the $100 Canadian Olympic Gold Coin

Destined to become one of the most outstanding Olympic Coins in the 3,000 year history of the Games, the new $100 Canadian Olympic Gold Coin, in Uncirculated quality is now available at official issue price until June 15, 1976.

Here are seven features which enhance the value of the Canadian Olympic Gold Coin.

1 First $100 Olympic Gold Coin ever issued.
2 Second Olympic Gold Coin of any kind ever issued by a host nation.
3 Highest denomination Olympic coin ever minted.
4 Highest denomination coin ever issued in North America.
5 Minted in a limited edition.
6 Minted by one of the world's finest Government mints.
7 All previous Canadian gold coin issues have increased significantly in value.

Considering these facts, it is fair to expect that the $100 Canadian Olympic Gold Coin is more than likely to increase in value . . . especially when one examines the investment performance of other Canadian gold coins.

The outstanding investment performance of Canadian gold coins

People who bought any Canadian gold coin at close to face value have multiplied their investment substantially. The remarkable appreciation on the three Canadian gold coins may explain why coin investment counsellors often recommend them.

Canadian gold coins with a face value of $5 and $10 were issued during the years 1912 to 1914 and have increased significantly in value. Even the most recent Canadian gold coin, the 1967 $20 Centennial gold coin, has shown a significant increase in value in the 9 years since its issue. (See table below.)

The return on a $100 investment in Canadian gold coins

Coin	Quantity Minted	Return on $100 Investment*
$ 5 gold Canadian 1912-1914	295,634	$3,200
$10 gold Canadian 1912-1914	364,059	$3,700
$20 — 1967 Centennial gold	337,512	$ 300

*Based on values of very fine quality coins as published in Coin Stamp Antique News, January 1976.
Sold only with a complete set of Canadian coins at $40.

Now the Government of Canada is issuing a fourth Canadian gold coin: the 1976 Canadian Olympic Gold Coin. Although no assurance can be given that any particular coin will appreciate in value, the $100 Canadian Olympic Gold Coin will certainly interest knowledgeable collectors the world over.

Available now in limited quantities at official issue price

This truly remarkable Canadian Olympic Gold Coin is being offered in Uncirculated quality at official issue price until June 15, 1976 on a first-come first-served basis at Canadian banks and authorized coin dealers. Because demand for this coin is expected to exceed supply, purchases of the 14 karat Gold Coin are limited to five (5) coins per customer.

A magnificent work of art in gold

Actual size

The ultimate souvenir, the treasured gift

Both coins have a face value of $100.

The Canadian Olympic Gold Proof Coin features a bold frosted image on a mirror finish field, and has an official issue price of $150, each plus $3.50 each for shipping/handling when ordered by mail.

Only the Brilliant Uncirculated Gold Coin has "beaded" markings on both faces. The official issue price is $105.

It's not that Victoria coach Pat Ginnell has anything to be ashamed about, but he planned to take his Cougars into hiding today.

The hiding intention was announced Sunday night, moments after the Cougars defeated Medicine Hat Tigers 5-4 at Memorial Arena, to take a commanding lead in their six-point Western Canada Hockey League quarter-final series.

Cougars, who defeated the Tigers 3-2 Thursday and then rallied for a 2-2 tie Saturday in Medicine Hat, lead the series 5-1 with the fourth game scheduled at Memorial Arena on Tuesday.

Cougars need only a tie in order to advance into a semi-final series with New Westminster Bruins.

Despite Victoria's formidable position, Ginnell still wants to lead Cougars into seclusion after a mid-day practice today. "Mainly," explained Ginnell, "to keep their minds on what they have to do."

Victoria's ability to come through with big goals in the late going in both weekend games enabled the Cougars to wind up holding the hammer over the Tigers' heads.

A breakaway goal by Al Hill midway through the final period was Sunday's crusher. Hill stole the puck from Medicine Hat defenceman Cliff Lane and broke a 3-3 tie with his breakaway goal, his second of the night.

A few minutes later, Cougar captain Jim Gustafson made it 5-3 and Victoria held on for the victory before 3,991 fans.

Defencemen Tim Williams and Greg Tebbutt counted Victoria's other goals. Don Murdoch, drawing new linemates and finally shaking away from tenacious Victoria checking, scored twice for Medicine Hat with Lane and Tom Bast supplying singles.

An 88-goal gunner during the regular campaign, Murdoch moved from his regular right wing spot alongside Greg Carroll and Morris Lukowich to a unit with Bast and Jim Lomas. The shift by coach Jack Shupe helped Murdoch get his first scoring points against Victoria.

Jim Bertram replaced Murdoch on the line with Carroll and Lukowich. The manouevre was neutralized somewhat by the fact that Bertram was on the ice for four Victoria goals and Lugowich and Carroll three.

Their minus ratings, however, didn't suffer as much as Lane's. The Medicine Hat captain was on the ice for all five Victoria goals.

In Saturday's game at Medicine Hat, a fluke power-play goal brought the Cougars to life after Tigers held Victoria scoreless for 56 minutes, 32 seconds.

Winger Jeff McDill's attempted passout deflected off Medicine Hat defenceman Darrell Durrand and past goalie Ken Holland.

A few minutes later, with Ginnell yanked goaltender Murray Bannerman in favor of an extra attacker, Gustafson scored the typing marker.

Bannerman was the Victoria standout Saturday and he came back with another strong effort in Sunday's game. With Tigers leading 1-0, Bannerman stopped a cold-cut chance by Jim Nill in the first period and in the third period, with the game tied 3-3, he came up with a big save against Brian Hill.

ICE CHIPS: Diminutive Dennis Fenske, assigned to shadow Murdoch, was Holland's biggest victim Sunday . . . Fenske has at least four excellent scoring chances . . . Both teams scored two power-play goals . . . Murdoch got his second while the Cougars were two short . . . Sunday's game in Victoria brought NHL scouts out in force . . . Among those taking notes were general manager Jack Gordon and Ted O'Connor of Minnesota North Stars, coach Phil Maloney and George Wood of Vancouver Canucks, Barton Bradley and Gary Darling of Boston Bruins, Red Sullivan of Washington Capitals and George Agar of California Golden Seals . . . Also on hand was WCHL president Ed Chynoweth . . .

Wests, Oak Bay Reach Jackson Cup Showdown

Oak Bay had a slightly tougher time than Victoria West as both clubs earned berths in the Vancouver Island Soccer League's Jackson Cup final with victories at the weekend.

Oak Bay had to go down to the last penalty kick in overtime before edging University of Victoria Vikings 6-5 Sunday night at Royal Athletic Park after Vic West had topped Cosmopolitan Royals 2-0 on the same pitch Saturday.

Jos DeBruin scored from a goalmouth scramble to put Oak Bay ahead at the five-minute mark but Peter Saunders tied it up at 26 minutes off a header by Danny Lomas.

The score was still deadlocked 1-1 at the end of regulation time after an Oak Bay goal was disallowed because of an offside.

After 30 minutes of overtime, the score was still 1-1 and the two teams resorted to shooting five penalty shots each.

Vikings lost the match by missing on their fifth attempt.

Steve Forslund scored both goals for Vic West, knocking a pass from Gary McLaren into the net at the 31-minute mark and then booting another goal two minutes later.

Meanwhile, Powell River Villas upset league-champion London Boxing Club 4-2 Sunday in a Premier Division semi-final at Topaz Park.

Brian Gomez opened scoring for Powell River at the 24-minute mark after collecting a pass from Drew Ferguson, who then put the visiting club ahead 3-0 with goals at 31 and 37 minutes.

Ash Valdal connected with an assist from Danny Herd to put Boxers on the scoresheet at 38 minutes.

At 68 minutes, Alvin Wilson collected a pass from Ferguson and scored the final Powell River goal. George Pakos got one more back for Boxers at 86 minutes.

Boxers were without the services of Brian Robinson, Bob Bolitho and Frank Woods, who are all in Vancouver trying out for either the Whitecaps or national squad.

Ron Thompson was also missing because of an injury and Powell River was without league-leading scorer Brian Holingsworth.

In the second division playoff final Sunday, Cosmopolitan Royals came from behind in the second half to top Prospect Lake 3-2 in overtime at Heywood Avenue Park.

Gordy Kishkan and Tom Elwell scored to give Prospect Lake a 2-0 halftime lead before Royals got untracked. Jerry Punt fired the first Royals' goal on a penalty shot, Arthur Smith connected for the tying mark and Lou Rouley blasted in the winner during the first 10-minute overtime session.

Victoria West blanked Labatts 5-0 and UVic Norsemen forfeited to Gillespie Electric in final second division make-up matches the same day.

Castaways topped Nanaimo 4-1 in the Hub City during the third division playoff final Sunday.

Ed Stevenson led Castaways with two goals while singles were added by Keith Dixon and Brian Heath. Peter Bateman scored the lone tally for Nanaimo, which trailed 3-1 at the half.

In fourth division play, which wraps up without playoffs next weekend, Castaways downed Prospect Lake 4-1, PG Men's Wear bounced Harvey's Sporting Goods 9-1, Vantreights edged International Restaurant 3-2, UVic Alumni nipped Duncan 1-0 and Sooke defeated Tsawout, 5-2.

Hawks Don't Raise Flap Against Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — In order to win hockey games, you must be able to score and in order to score, you have to get some decent chances at the opposing goaltender.

Chicago Black Hawks failed to score in the opening game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final series against Montreal Canadiens and had few, if any, dangerous shots at Ken Dryden as the Canadiens skated to a 4-0 win to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Canadiens, champions of the Norris Division, were in complete command most of the way and held a 2-0 lead with 8½ minutes gone on goals by defenceman Larry Robinson and centre Peter Mahovlich. The struggling Black Hawks did not register their first shot on Dryden until 8:13 of the period and on the return rush, Mahovlich scored.

Rookie centre Doug Jarvis scored his first National Hockey League playoff goal at 16:41 of the second period against Tony Esposito and veteran right winger Jim Roberts rounded out the scoring with an unassisted goal at 12:50 of the third for Montreal, who had a 37-22 edge in shots on goal.

"It may have looked like they were playing poorly, but then again, we were playing well," said sophomore centre Doug Risebrough.

"We were skating, forechecking and coming back."

Dryden, who recorded his fourth career playoff shutout, admitted he had an easy time of it.

"I suppose you would expect more tough shots," Dryden said. "There weren't that many tonight. They aren't the type of team that is going to put sustained pressure on you. They just capitalize on your mistakes. That's been the style of Chicago over the years."

Coach Billy Reay expressed his displeasure with the work of referee Ron Wicks and moaned the lack of Chicago offensive punch.

Reay was upset with the call by Wicks in the second period after a fight between Mahovlich and Phil Russell of the Black Hawks.

"It's hard to understand," Reay said. "The referee-in-chief sends out this pamphlet on what they are going to call and enforce during the playoffs. . . . one of the things was hair pulling."

"Mahovlich pulled Russell's hair. He should have been out of the game."

However, the failure of Wicks to eject Mahovlich with the match penalty was not a turning point in the game.

'Look, we have to score goals to win," Reay noted. "We got shut out tonight. As I say, you can't win if you don't score."

Gilbert Gets 'Respect' And Blanks Los Angeles

BOSTON (AP) — Respect means a lot to goalie Gilles Gilbert of Boston Bruins.

That's the reason he wanted so badly to play in the first game of his team's National Hockey League's quarter-final series.

Gilbert responded to the assignment with a 21-save shutout as the Bruins whipped Los Angeles Kings 4-0 Sunday night.

"Talk that I wouldn't start bothered me very much," Gilbert said. "I was mad.

"Gerry (Cheevers) is a super goaltender, but I thought I should be the starting goalie. I got so much aggravation from last year when I had a bad back. I had a great season this year and just thought I should start the first game.

"You gotta get respect. I respect everybody and I want everybody to respect me. I don't care if I start the next game (here Tuesday night). It's not the same now. I started this game. Now the coach can do what he wants to do."

Boston coach Don Cherry admitted that he already has picked Cheevers to start the second game, "no matter what happened in the opener."

With two outstanding, and experienced goalies, Cherry doesn't believe it necessary to go with any hot hand.

Actually, Gilbert had a comparatively easy night. He made only four saves, two on shots from outside the blue line, in the first period. Many other saves also were on long shots. However, he was tough when he had to be.

"Gilbert played very, very well when he got some work after that first period," said Los Angeles coach Bob Pulford. "They all played very well and deserved it."

The Bruins scored on three of five powerplay opportunities and once while shorthanded. Los Angeles failed to connect on six power-play chances.

CRIMINAL CHARGES MAY FOLLOW BENCH-CLEARING BRAWL IN QUEBEC

By The Canadian Press

There were threats of criminal charges and the World Hockey Association's leading scorer was in hospital Sunday night after a bench-clearing brawl between Calgary Cowboys and Quebec Nordiques.

But when the brawling was over, the surprising Cowboys had an 8-4 win over the Nordiques and appeared headed for an upset in their series with the Quebec team.

The win was the second at Quebec in as many nights for the Cowboys, who finished 16 points behind the Nordiques in the Canadian Division standings.

Calgary won Saturday's game 3-1. The best-of-seven Canadian Division semi-final shifts now to Calgary for games Wednesday and Friday night.

Winnipeg Jets edged Edmonton Oilers 5-4 to take a 2-0 lead in the other Canadian Division semi-final.

New England Whalers captured one United States quarterfinal berth, completing a sweep of their best-of-five quarter-final with a 3-2 win over Cleveland Crusaders.

The other quarter-final was tied 1-1 after San Diego Mariners dropped Phoenix Roadrunners 4-2 Saturday night.

The fighting started when Rick Jodzio came off the Calgary bench to charge Quebec's Marc Tardif, high-sticking this season's scoring champion across the face.

When Tardif fell to the ice, Jodzio dropped his gloves and began to strike him. Pierre Roy of the Nordiques came to his team-mate's defence and both benches cleared.

While players boxed and wrestled on the ice, Tardif was carried off on a stretcher and taken to hospital with a concussion. He was ordered to stay overnight, but was expected to return to action Wednesday in Calgary.

The fighting lasted for more than 20 minutes and referee Steve Dowling left the teams in their dressing-rooms for another 40 minutes to cool off.

About 20 municipal policemen stepped on to the ice in the midst of the fighting but did not intervene.

A police spokesman said only that the incident will be investigated but a spokesman for the Nordiques said the club plans to file charges.

Dowling tossed five players from each team out of the game as a result of the incident. Jodzio and Quebec's Gord Gallant drew match penalties while Calgary's Warren Miller,, Danny Lawson, Peter Driscoll and Pat Westrum and Quebec's Pierre Roy, Curt Brackenbury, Bill Prentice and Steve Sutherland drew game misconducts.

Gavin Kirk asd George Morrison had two goals each. Bernie Lukowich, Ron Chipperfield, Don Tannahill and Lynn Powis scored the others for Calgary. Serge Bernier had two goals and Tardif and Bob Fichner one each for Quebec.

Goalie Dave Dryden kept the Oilers in the game at Winnipeg, making 57 stops, but the Jets finally won when Ulf Nilsson scored his second goal of the game in the first minute of overtime.

Willy Lindstrom, Lyle Moffat and Bobby Hull were the other Winnipeg scorers. Rusty Patenaude, Ken Baird, Dann Spring and Tim Sheehy scored for Edmonton.

New England's Mike Rogers and Ralph Backstrom beat goalie Bob Johnson with goals 93 seconds apart late in the game to wipe out a 2-1 Cleveland lead and knock the Crusaders out of the playoffs.

Bob McNanama was New England's other scorer. Danny Gruen and Al McDonough scored for Cleveland.

Giants Find New Fan Support; Beat Dodgers Twice

By The Associated Press

The national League seems to have found both a new fanchise and a new city in San Francisco.

The Giants, who all but put the final signatures on a transfer agreement to Toronto earlier this year, have found new money in owners Bud Herseth and Robert Lurie and now a new legion of supporters.

The Giants, once on their way out of the crowded Bay area, have become "in" in San Francisco.

Rain washed out Saturday's game but Friday's and Sunday's games with Los Angeles Dodgers drew a total of 62,920 fans. That figure represents nearly one-eighth of last year's dismal season turnout of 522,919 in San Francisco.

The fans, rewarded by a season-opening victory Friday and a comeback 6-4 win, came out despite a strike of the city's craft workers who set up pickets around Candlestick Park and virtually closed the stadium's concession stands.

"We've heard talk about the baseball enthusiasm up here," said Bill Rigney, so far undefeated in his second stint as the Giants' skipper. "But talk is one thing, seeing it is another."

In Sunday's other games, Cincinnati Reds stayed unbeaten with a 9-3 victory over the winless Houston Astros, Pittsburgh Pirates stopped Philadelphia Phillies 8-3, Montreal Expos edged New York Mets 7-6, Atlanta Braves beat San Diego Padres 4-2 and Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis Cardinals 8-5.

In the American League, Fred Lynn, Rookie of the Year and most valuable player for the Red Sox in 1975, had a string of six successive hits in Boston's weekend series with Baltimore Orioles.

Two of them—a home run in the first inning and a double to open a five-run third—propelled Boston to its first victory of the season, a 6-2 breeze over the Orioles.

In the only other American League games played Sunday, Oakland A's won their third in a row, outlasting California Angels 10-7, and Minnesota Twins also got their first victory of the year, edging Texas Rangers 4-3.

On Saturday, Baltimore whipped Boston 5-1, Detroit downed Cleveland 3-1, New York outslugged Milwaukee 9-7, Oakland topped California 6-2 and Texas defeated Minnesota 4-1.

The opening series between the Dodgers and Giants, the West Coast rivals who brought California into baseball, was the first since 1958, when the major leagues first came to San Francisco.

Chub Feeney, president of the National League, said the schedule-makers wanted the Giants' attendance to start off fast in San Francisco.

"We planned it that way, even before the sale of the team," Feeney said.

What they didn't plan was the Giants' quick success on the field. Pinch-hitter Dave Rader hit a two-out two-run double to cap a four-run eighth inning that made a loser of relief specialist Mike Marshall.

Cincinnati's Pat Darcy, extending the major league's longest indiviual winning streak to 10, pitched no-hit ball for five innings before giving up two walks and a single in the sixth and giving way to reliever Pat Zachary.

Pittsburgh's Bob Moose, who spent part of the 1975 season in the minors working his arm back into shape, relieved starter Bruce Kison in the sixth inning and blanked the Phillies the rest of the way.

Pete Rose led the Reds' attack with four hits to become the league's active leader in career hits. His career total of 2,556 moved him past the Cardinals' Lou Brock.

Nate Colbert drove in two runs with a home run and a single and Bombo Rivera knocked in two more with a double to give new Montreal manager Karl Kuehl his first major league victory.

Floyd Romps to Eight-Shot Win

RAY FLOYD . . . led all the way

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ray Floyd grabbed the sprawling Augusta National course by the nape of the neck and literally shook it into submission Sunday, winning the 50th Masters golf tournament with a record-tying score.

The great Jack Nicklaus, like everybody else, wound up being a spectator, finishing 11 shots off the pace. Floyd led every round as the glamorous event became a dull one-man show.

Floyd's winning score was 65-66-70-70—271, tying the record Nicklaus set in 1965.

Only one man made a serious lunge at him and it proved too little too late. Young Ben Crenshaw charged in with a closing 67, highlighted by a gambling eagle on the 13th and a par on the long 15th from the water, to take second money with 279, eight strokes back.

Floyd collected $40,000, Crenshaw $25,000.

Nicklaus, recognized as undisputed king of the game with 16 major titles, never mustered a rally in defence of the title he grabbed for the fifth time a year ago. He struggled in with a 73 to tie Larry Ziegler for third at 282.

Floyd, a 33-year-old veteran of 15 years on the tour, started the final round with an eight-stroke lead after finishing Saturday's round with a birdie. He said he was convinced Saturday night that he could win.

"Realistically, I knew it was over—I was sure no one could catch me," he said. "But I didn't want to finish sloppily, I wanted to shoot a good round.

"After I got that birdie on the 15th, I just wanted to finish and not get hurt. I was in control."

Nevertheless, Floyd's hands were shaking slightly when he reported to the locker room about an hour before his scheduled Sunday tee-off time and began opening stacks of telegrams from friends and well-wishers.

At the very first hole, he hooked his drive behind a tall pine tree. Right off, he was staring at a possible bogey or double bogey.

"I was only about 2½ feet from the tree," he said. "I had no line to the green at all.

"So I punched a hard hook shot out with a seven-iron and it rolled flag high on the green. I almost broke my club but I saved my par."

Floyd got his lone bogey on the fourth hole where his shot into the wind missed the green but he recovered on the nex hole, lashing a three-iron shot to within three feet of the cup.

He got another birdie at the short 12th, sinking a putt from 20 feet, and then birdied the 520-yard 15th with a 15-foot putt that gave him a record of having played the four par fives 14 under par for the four days. Jimmy Demaret previously held the record of 13.

Crenshaw played about 45 minutes in front of Floyd and Ziegler, the last twosome on the course.

After turning in 34, Crenshaw was still battling for second and third money at six under par — nine back of the leader — until he suddenly caught fire

At the 485-yard 13th, he threw all his strength into a three-wood fairway shot that sent the ball spinning to the top deck of the green. Then he sank a 20-foot putt for an eagle.

On the next hole, after driving into the trees, he faded a two-iron shot on to the green and sank a 15-footer for a birdie.

All of his heroics seemed for naught on the long 15th when, gambling for another eagle, he saw his 250-yard three-wood shot fall short of the green and dribble back into the water.

Crenshaw proceeded to remove the shoe and sock of his right foot and climbed into the water, saving par by whacking the ball back into play.

Hale Irwin, Charles Coody and young Tom Kite tied at 285 and the veteran Bill Casper came out of the pack with a 69 to finish at 287. Britain's Peter Oosterhuis shot a 68 for 293.

FIRST POSTPONEMENT DELAYS ISLAND OPEN

The first postponement in its 27-year history has set back the 1976 Vancouver Island Open golf tournament schedule.

The scheduled opening round of match play was abandoned because of heavy rain at Victoria Golf Club on Sunday morning.

Building pools of water forced club professional Paul Trapp to declare six greens unplayable. With the early starters playing only the fourth hole, play was finally abandoned.

An emergency meeting of the Victoria district Committee will be held tonight at Gorge Vale to decide on a new schedule.

The qualifying round at Uplands April 4 produced 32 qualifiers in the championship and an additional 32 in a handicap division. Survivors of the first-round matches were to play at Royal Colwood next Sunday. Both quarter-finals and semi-finals were set April 25 at Glen Meadows and the finals May 2 at Gorge Vale.

Because of Sunday's setback, district Committee officials are known to consider three alternatives:

1) they can set back the entire tournament, winding up with the finals on May 9;

2) They can catch up on the original schedule by playing two rounds next Sunday — either at Oak Bay and Colwood, or both at Colwood;

3) they can play the first round at the Oak Bay course on Good Friday and pick up the original schedule Sunday at Colwood.

Ironically, a few hours after the postponement decision was made, the weather broke and the sun shone for most of the afternoon.

Nanaimo's 'Good Day' Isn't Just Fond Wish

Nanaimo Clippers have a happy answer to anyone who asks them to "have a good day."

They have Brian Day.

The 20-year-old centre had the good day Saturday night and Nanaimo carried Vancouver Island representation into the British Columbia Junior Hockey League final.

Day scored four goals and set up 17-year-old linemate Rod Guimont for three in sparking Clippers to an easy 9-3 victory over Merritt Centennials at Memorial Arena.

Victoria enabled the arena-orphaned Clippers to eliminate Merritt 8-6 in their eight-point semi-final. Victoria Cougar's tier one affiliates now face Penticton Vees in the championship series scheduled to get under way in Memorial Arena this week.

The final is expected to open either Wdnesday or Thursday. Dates and the length of the series were to be decided today.

All Nanaimo home games will be played in Memorial Arena because of a civic workers' strike that has forced Clippers out of their home rink.

Day, one of the team's originals when Nanaimo entered the BCJHL four years ago, scored two of his goals on power-plays and one while killing a penalty.

Geordie Robertson and Mike Shields, a pair of Victoria-area products, scored Nanaimo's other goals while Danny Rota, with two, and Neil Robinson connected for Merritt before 1,332 fans. fans.

Clippers peppered 54 shots at Merritt goalies Randy Struch and Brad Earp, including 29 in the second period. Steve Amiss stopped 31 Merritt shots.

The bout was officially signed a month ago, but the date and site had not been decided at that time.

It will be a re-match for the boxers, who first met at Kingston, Jamaica, in January, 1973, when Foreman knocked out Frazier in the second round to win the title. In October, 1974, Foreman was dethroned by Muhammad Ali on an eighth-round knock-out in Kinshasa, Zaire.

Havlicek Sparks Celtics; SuperSonics to Meet Suns

By The Associated Press

John Havlicek may be reaching his peak for the National Basketball Association season, and coach Tommy Heinsohn of Boston Celtics just loves his timing.

"That's John," said Heinsohn, after Havlicek, who turned 36 last week, poured in a season high 38 points Sunday to lead the Atlantic Division champion Celtics to a 103-99 triumph over Washington Bullets as the NA's regular season drew to a close.

"He can do it all, and this is a perfect time for him to be getting it all together."

Havlicek, back in high gear after being slowed by a late-season knee injury said he felt tired when he got up this morning, "but for some reason when I got to the Capital Centre I felt real good."

Havlicek, who sank 12 of 23 shots from the field and added 14 of 15 free throws, put Boston ahead to stay at 49-46 with a three-point play early in the third period.

In Sunday's other NBA games,,, Seattle SuperSonics edged Portland Trail Blazers 132-131, Buffalo Braves nipped Kansas City Kings 99-98, Chicago Bulls trampled Milwaukee Bucks 111-77, Houston Rockets defeated Atlanta Hawks 122-111, New York Knicks beat Cleveland Cavaliers 103-78 and New Orleans Jazz dropped Detroit Pistons 112-105.

On Saturday, Atlanta whipped Philadelphia 76ers 123-109, Phoenix Suns defeated Seattle SuperSonics 121-95, New York stopped Cleveland 99-94 and Houston topped Detroit 110-99.

In the American Basketball Association, San Antonio Spurs tied their best-of-seven semi-final with New York 1-1 by beating the Nets 105-79 Sunday.

Indiana Pacers extended their best-of-three quarter-final with Kentucky to a third game by topping the Colonels 109-95 Saturday.

The NBA playoffs open Tuesday. Detroit is at Milwaukee in a best-of-three preliminary series opener, while Washington is at Cleveland and Phoenix is at Seattle for the first games of their quarter-final series. Buffalo opens its best-of-three preliminary series at Philadelphia on Thursday.

In the other two quarter-final series, Golden State will play the winner of the Detroit-Milwaukee set and Boston will take on the Buffalo-Philadelphia survivor.

Two Victoria-area schools—Esquimalt and Oak Bay Junior secondary — were fourth and fifth with 49 and 48 points.

Steen won the long jump with a leap of 21 feet, 10½ inches and took the high jump when he cleared six feet, two inches.

The only other double winner was Kathy Dong of Winston Churchill of Vancouver. She won the senior girls' hig jump at five feet, four inches and the open girls' long jump with a leap of 16 feet, 11 inches.

Esquimalt's first relay team set the only record of the meet with a time of nine minutes. 30.2 seconds in the open girls' 3x800-metre relay. The old record of 9:30.4 was set last year by West Vancouver.

WINNER of 800-metre event in triangular track and field meet Saturday in Seattle was Victoria athlete Tom Griffin. Running for University of B.C., Griffin finished race in one minute, 49.7 seconds. University of Washington won team honors, followed by Club Northwest and UBC.

Driver Killed

FREEMONT, Calif. (AP) — A 30-year-old San Hose race driver died Sunday as his wife and children watched when his dragster crashed in a high-speed practice run at Fremont Raceway, a race official said.

An Alameda County deputy coroner said that James Lewis, a plumber and race driver, died of massive injuries sustained in the crash.

Heroics on the Track

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Dave Pearson used new-found power to run away from Buddy Baker for victory in Sunday's 20th annual Rebel 500, a destruction derby that might have ended on a tragic note, but for a heroic act by Dale Inman.

Inman, crew chief for Richard Petty, rushed to the aid of rookie Jerry Siscoe, whose Chevrolet crashed into the straightaway wall and bust in flames. Inman ran on to the track and pulled the dazed driver to safety as fire crews arrived.

Fires are rare on National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR$ Grand National cars, which are equipped with specially-strengthened fuel cells. One also ruptured — without a fire — last month on Petty's car in a crash at Bristol, Tenn.

Sisco's wreck was the worst of several pileups that helped slow Pearson's average speed of 122.973 miles an hour.

Baker, in the lead early in the race, sustained considerable front-end damage to his car in a four-car pileup. But he came back and looked a sure winner until the last pit stop.

Pole-winner Pearson, who lost a lap at one point with a tire problem, rallied his Mercury to a five-length victory after a caution period with about 20 laps left.

Benny Parsons, two laps down, was third, followed by Lennie Pond, both in Chevrolets, and Dodge driver Dave Marcis.

Pearson, a six-time Rebel 500 winner who has won five of the six times he's raced this season, collected $17,500 of the $144,580 purse. A record crowd of 52,000 watched at the 1⅝-mile Darlington Raceway.

German Driver Takes Opener

'Bad Player' Fares Well In Victory

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP)— Dennie Meyer, a self-proclaimed "bad player," gained the Magnolia Open lead with a tricky 25-foot downhill putt on the ninth hole Sunday, then birdied three holes on the back nine to pocket $7,000 first-place money.

Meyer went into Sunday's final round six under par in a five-way deadlock for third with a 204.

Tom Purtzer was runner-up, earning $3,237. He birdied two of the last three holes and said he discovered too late the secret of success.

Saturday's leader, Carlton White, ballooned to a 75 on his final round and found himself tied with Pete Brown for 14th place and $654.

Defending champ Dwight Nevil was tied with five other players for ninth place and $860.

Birmingham Gets Help For Games

LONDON (AFP) — The Sports Council of Great Britain has given approval to a record four million pounds ($8 million) grant to the city of Birmingham to stage the Commonwealth Games in 1982

The grant, announced by Denis Howell, minister for sport and recreation, is conditional on an assurance by Birmingham to provide the facilities required for the Games.

These include an athletics stadium now under construction, a 50-metre international swimming pool and a warm-up pool, a cycling centre, bowling greens and indoor facilities for sports like badminton and boxing.

The Commonwealth Games have not been staged in England since 1934, and it will be the first time that major multi-sport Games are held in England since the 1948 Olympics.

Nationals Nipped

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Italia of the National Soccer League defeated Canada's Olympic soccer team 1-0 in an exhibition soccer match Saturday before a crowd of 400. Mario Narciso scored the only goal.

ANDY FINDS HIS MILLION

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Free-agent Andy Messersmith ended his search for a million dollars Saturday when he agreed to terms with Atlanta Braves of baseball's National League.

Terms of the contact were not disclosed by Braves owner Ted Turner, but a source close to the club said the offer was "very comparable to the offer the (San Diego) Padres made" which was $1.15 million over a four-year contract.

However, Turner said it was "a three-year contract with renewals."

Turner met with Herb Osmond, Messersmith's agent, for more than two hours Saturday and when they emerged from a meeting room at a San Diego hotel, Turner was smiling.

"Well I've just signed a 10-page document and I'm not sure what it said," he said. "We just discussed the basic points."

Messersmith was not at the meeting, but Osmond called the pitcher at his Newport Beach Calif., apartment.

"Well, here's what they offered," said Osmond, who then shut the door to the phone booth.

On Thursday, San Diego owner Ray Kroc offered the former Los Angeles pitcher a four-year $1.15 million contract and when Messersmith turned it down, Kroc called the right-handed ace arrogant.

Turner said Messersmith was driving 70 miles south to San Diego to sign the contract.

Osmond declined to reveal terms of the contract and said "I feel that's between the club and the player.

"The Braves acquired the services of Andy Messersmith. And vice versa. As long as Andy's in baseball he'll be pitching for the Atlanta Braves."

Messersmith challenged baseball's reserve clause last year and a federal arbitrator ruled in his favor, making him a free agent.

Emile Leaves Rangers

AT NEW YORK FOR 16 YEARS

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Francis resigned as vice-president of the New York Rangers Saturday, ending a 16-year association with the National Hockey League team.

The move was announced by William Jennings, president of the club.

"After working with Emile all these years since 1960, this is a very sad announcement for me to make," Jennings said. "However Emile tells me he prefers to be where the action is as a general manager. In any event, myself and everyone at Madison Square Garden wish him the best."

Francis had more than two years remaining on his contract with the Rangers. However, he had the option to terminate the contract at any time he was not general manager.

He served as the club's general manager from Oct. 1, 1964, until Jan. 6 of this year when he was replaced by John Ferguson.

He is expected to join another NHL club shortly. Among the clubs reported interested in Francis are St. Louis, Los Angeles, Chicago and Detroit.

No-Hit Victory

Stan Kern, Dave Ruthowsky and Andy Konopacki combined to pitch a no-hitter Saturday to spark Victoria Bates to an 11-0 shutout over Ingraham Hotel of the Stuffy McGinnis League in an exhibition softball game.

Another Kuhn Delay

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn again deferred any action on the question of expansion to Toronto and Washington Saturday, pending a meeting with the American League's planning committee.

Kuhn issued a short statement from his office saying that Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, had suggested an early meeting of the committee with the commissioner.

"The purpose of the meeting is to discuss further the Washington situation," Kuhn said.

Ten days ago, the commissioner approved American League expansion to Toronto providing the league also came up with a formula for supplying major-league baseball to Washington. He set a seven-day deadline for that purpose, saying that if the AL could not come up with a solution in that period, he would consider a proposed National League move to Toronto and Washington instead.

The American League reacted angrily to Kuhn's action, saying it planned to go ahead with its announced expansion to Seattle and Toronto, regardless of the commissioner's announcement.

"President MacPhail advised that he was acting pursuant to the commissioner's teletype request to all clubs last Wednesday that they let him (Kuhn) know any suggested solutions," Kuhn said.

Baseball has been under pressure from political leaders to return to the nation's capital. Two franchises have failed in Washington and no team has played there since the Senators left following the 1971 season, moving to Texas.

Canadians Shine

HUNGARY (CP) — The Canadian Olympic women's volley-ball team wound up with a 4-1 record Friday, while defeating East Germany and Hungary, in the Savaria Cup tournament in Szombely on the Austrian-Hungarian border.

Canada and Cuba had identical records at the conclusion of the five-day competition but the Cubans took first over-all because of more wins in the series. The Cubans had 14 wins and six defeats in recording their 4-1 record while Canada finished with 12 victories and six setbacks.

However, the Canadians defeated two teams ranked among the world's top 10 for their impressive showing. They topped East Germany, rated No. 4 in the world, 15-5, 3-15, 8-15, 17-15, 15-6. Canada also defeated Hungary, the world's sixth-ranked country, 4-16, 11-15, 15-12, 15-5, 15-7.

In other games, Canada defeated the Soviet Union 15-5, 15-6, 15-10, topped Bulgaria 15-8, 15-8, 13-15, 15-5. Cuba defeated Canada 15-5, 15-8, 15-3.

Carole Bishop of Vancouver was named as the best centre in the tournament, Audrey Vanderveldein of Vancouver was selected as the best spiker and Betty Baxter of Olds, Alta., was picked as the best all around player.

Bonk Breaks Lift Record

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — Gerd Bonk of East Germany broke the world super-heavyweight jerk record and equalled the world combined snatch and jerk record Sunday in weight-lifting competition.

Bonk lifted 556.8 pounds in the jerk to beat the record held by Vassili Alexev of the Soviet Union by 11 pounds.

He also had a combined total of 953.7 pounds to equal the record held by Christo Plachkov of Bulgaria.

Lobbezoo Sets Pace

FRED LOBBEZOO

Fred Lobbezoo of Victoria set the pace in the men's division at Mayfair Lanes Sunday in the provincial rolloffs of Canadian Tenpin Federation competition.

Bouncing the pins for single-game tallies of 246, 202, 212 and 201, Lobbezoo chalked up a total of 1,957 in the 10-game event.

In second place at 1,926 was Vancouver's John Allenby, who also had four games over 200, including a 223 effort. Al Clepshaw of Vancouver was third at 1,911.

Lobbezoo and Allenby qualified for the 1977 national finals, scheduled for Toronto.

Rose Aitken of Vancouver was the lone qualifier from the women's scratch competition. She finished her 10 games with 1,804 for a 44-pin margin over Sue Tuininga of Campbell River.

Two Victoria bowlers were included among the our women and four men qualifying in six-game handicap events.

Thelma Payne of Victoria posted a 1,335 total to lead the women's handicap test. She was followed by Gail Cutworth, Duncan, 1,313; Alice Bilan, Campbell River, 1,311 and Jan Lemoine, Port Moody, 1,286.

Qualifying in the men's handicap event were Robert Michieli, Duncan, 1,481; Paul Chin, Vancouver, 1,358; George Gecseg, Duncan, 1,345, and Phil Ralph, Victoria, 1,289.

Horse Collapses After Triumph

BADMINTON, England (Reuter)— Wide Awake won the Badminton horse trials Sunday and then died on his lap of honor.

Wide Awake's rider, European champion Lucinda Prior-Palmer, had just received the winner's prize from Britain's Queen Elizabeth when her 10-year-old horse collapsed.

Princess Anne, the Queen's daughter whose husband Mark Phillips finished third, consoled Miss Prior-Palmer as the 21-year-old British girl wept.

It was a bitter blow to Miss Prior-Palmer's hopes for the Montreal Olympics. Her immaculate performance here had virtually clinched selection for her and Wide Awake.

She is now expected to ride Be Fair in Montreal, the horse on which she won the European three-day event title last year.

Hawley Starting Fast In Bid for Jockey Title

By The Canadian Press

Sandy Hawley is striking fast in his bid for another North American riding title, this time at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif.

He rode four winners Saturday, as did Bill Shoemaker, although winding up fourth on Dahlia in the $50,000 Gamely Handicap, in which Lafitt Pincay guided Katonka to victory.

Hawley, from Mississauga, Ont., moved to Hollywood Park after running away with the jockey's crown at Santa Anita Park in Arcadia, Calif., with 129 victories.

At Inglewood, he won the first three races and would up the afternoon with a victory aboard Strike Me Lucky, $7, in the ninth.

A threatened strike by security guards and other employees that would have closed Hollywood Park failed to materialize as a tentative settlement was reached. It does not cover three other California tracks, Los Alamitos, Golden Gate Fields or Bay Meadows.

Pincay rode Katonka, a slight favorite, to a 1:50 2-5 clocking over 1⅛ miles on the turf. The winnr returned $5.80, $3.80, and $2.60 for beating four rivals in the event for three-year-olds and up.

Fascinating Girl, three lengths back and ridden by Fernando Toro, finished second and returned $4.80 and $3. Tinza, ridden by Donald Pierce, paid $2.80 to show.

At Aqueduct Park in New York, Double Edge Sword went to the front at the start and led all the way to win the $75,200 Excelsior Handicap.

Off as the 2-to-1 favorite, the six-year-old son of Sword Dancer duplicated his front-running performance in the Westchester Handicap on March 27. At the finish of 1⅛ miles, Double Edge Sword, ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., held a 3¾-length margin over Northerly, a 6-to-1 shot.

Enchanged Native rushed to the lead early in the stretch and won the $52,750 Sixty Sails Handicap by three lengths at Chicago's Sportsmans Park.

Honky Star, the even-money favorite, edged Regal Rumor by a neck for second place. Hope She Does was a nose behind in fourth in the one-mile race for fillies and mares.

At Baltimore, Dance My Love easily won her first stakes race, defeating Siz Ziz Zit by five lengths in the $28,350 Hillstop Stakes at Pimlico Race Course.

Dance My Love ran 1 1-16 miles in 1:46 2-5 and returned $20.80, $8.20 and $5.40.

TRIFECTA RECORD

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — The lone ticket holder for the 12-1-6 trifecta in the final race at Garden State Park earned a world record payoff of $112,394.10 when the combination clicked Saturday at the thoroughbred track. The winning horse in the 1 1-16 mile event, Burdeos 2nd, paid $115.40 to win. Absolute Proof, $12.40, was second and Spring Forward, $9.20, third. It was the second world record payoff within two months for Garden State, which had an $85,198.50 winner Feb. 7.

Island Juniors Capture Provincial Hockey Title

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Island I captured the B.C. junior women's field hockey championship here Sunday by blanking Burnaby II 2-0 in the final score of a modified round-robin tounament.

Cindy Bray and Joan Carruthers scored for Island I in the final.

Island I finished the round-robin portion of the event earlier Sunday with a 2-1 win over Burnaby I on goals by Miss Bray and Sue Taylor.

In Saturday play, Island I dropped Okanagan 3-1 (Miss Taylor, Miss Bray and Mary Cavin) and shut out Vancouver I 3-0 (Miss Bray, Miss Carruthers and Sheri Sudlow).

Island II finished fifth in the tourney with two victories Sunday— an 8-1 decision over Coquitlam and a last-game 2-1 victory over Okanagan — after losing both Saturday games.

Pam Kozak scored both goals against Okanagan and notched two more against Coquitlam. Julie Straight and Peni Botham also scored twice against Coquitlam while single goals were added by Cathy Bailey and Joanne Griffin.

On Saturday, Island II bowed 3-2 to West Vancouver and 4-1 to Burnaby II. Misses Botham and Bailey scored against West Van and Miss Straight connected against Burnaby II.

The tourney also served as a trials, from which about 30 players will be selected to attend camps in Vancouver (May 1-2) and Victoria (May 8-9). After the camps, a B.C. team will be picked to attend the Canadian championship tournament in Winnipeg, starting Aug. 14.

Mohawks Reach Western Final

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Prince George Mohawks whipped the Calgary Trojans 12-5 Sunday to sweep their best-of-five British Columbia-Alberta intermediate hockey final in three straight games.

Mohawks won the first two games 9-2 and 6-5 and led all the way Sunday as they got revenge for the three straight losses in last year's final in Calgary.

Prince George held period leads of 4-1 and 7-3 Sunday and outshot Calgary 47-44.

Gord Gerrard, picked up from the Burnaby Lakers, and Bill Bell led the winners with three goals each. Rich Benningshof and Glen Johnson had two each, with Grant Williams and Pete McEwen scoring singles.

Brian Carlin scored three times for Calgary.

Crimes of Passion on Decline?

A psychiatrist who has studied murderers and their victims says most killers are otherwise law-abiding citizens and he sees hope crimes of passion may diminish.

Dr. Bruno Cormier, professor at McGill University and director of the clinic in forensic psychiatry there,, was one of the speakers here at the annual meeting of the North Pacific Society of Neurology and Psychiatry.

In an interview, he said more crime occurs between those who know each other than between strangers, and that includes murders.

Among couples, where one has eventuall killed the other, the danger signs comes when they find they are unable to live together but also unable to part. This has been called the "lockage" phenomenon.

"Killing then becomes a form of separation," he said.

Murder usually means strong feelings toward the victim by the killer and most hardened criminals have few strong personal ties, he said. So there is little incentive for them to kill.

Why do otherwise law-abiding people sometimes turn to murdering their partners?.

CORMIER
. . . "law abiding killers"

"Most of us gain satisfaction and gratification from personal relations, which may be frustrating at times," he said.

"The very terms gratifying, rewarding, frustrating, indicate the people establish meaningful ties from which they derive satisfaction and that precisely for this reason they must accept and sustain frustration to maintain the relationship.

"Those we love are the very ones who give us the most frustration and they may become the ones whom we hate the most. They are the ones with whom we are likely to develop conflicts which go so far as a wish to destroy them and which may end acting out this wish," he said.

Previous studies have shown in marital homicides, murder resulted from strong interlocking ties, where murderer and victim had a great need for each other, not only for their well-being but the reverse, because of their problems.

The "lockage" phenomenon may also produce other family-related homicides, for example, when an adloescent finds himself emotionally locked into his family and unable to join his peers.

Some murderers intend to commit suicide after the slaying. The sight of a corpse can snap them back to a sense of reality when they may either take their own life or meekly give themselves up.

Cormier said he believes the numbers of so-called "specific" murders, that is, involving killers and victims who had a relationship, remains about constant because they stem "from the same old human conflicts."

But he is inclined to believe that this kind of homicide may decrease in future if society learns that the marriage relationship need not last at any price.

"That," he said, "may just be wishful thinking."

Injury Awards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forty-four victims of criminal assault were awarded a total of $140,792 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act during March. Under the act, which is administered by the Workers' Compensation Board, any victim of crime in B.C. can apply for compensation.

The Ultimate Tribute: Another Revolution

By MARGOT HORNBLOWER
Washington Post

WASHINGTON —n a suite of crowded offices here, a youthful band of hustler-idealists is trying to celebrate the Bicentennial with what might strike some as the ultimate anachronism: a revolution.

Instead of parades and festivals, the Peoples' Bicentennial Commission (PBC) wants a second American Revolution to overthrow large corporations which, it claims, dominate U.S. life.

"A new breed of Tory rules the nation today," said Jeremy Rifkin, 31, the group's spokesman.

"This time he sits in the corporate boardroom of the Fortune 500. A new economic royalty has grown up among us. Exxon, ITT and GM are the King Georges of today."

PBC views the American Revolution as a radical movement and assails official birthday commemorations as a "buycentennial" dominated by large corporations.

With a staff of 18, many of whom are former anti-war protesters, PBC organizes demonstations, stages publicity campaigns. Distributes literature and raises money to promote the Bicentennial as a vehicle for "economic democracy," a euphemism for a form of socialism.

The group's latest project — announced by a flood of press releases — is typically controversial.

Two weeks ago, 1,000 wives of Fortune 500 executives received a black plastic tape cassette in the mail. The unlabeled recording assailed "widespread corporate corruption and criminality."

It asked the women to interrogate their husbands at the dinner table about their possible corporate misdeeds.

The tape was followed by a letter to 3,000 corporate wives discussing tax loopholes for the rich, the disparity of wealth in America and industrial pollution.

"Why don't you ask your husband whether he benefits from such loopholes?" the letters suggested.

PBC's patronizing tone infuriated many of the recipients. "I was disgusted with the letter," said Mary Jencks, whose husband pays in taxes, and it's a whale of a lot."

Virginia Jones, wife of an aerospace industry executive who lives in the Washington suburb of Chevy Chase, said the tape was "a waste of my time."

PBC has just written 10,000 corporation secretaries offering them $25,000 in cash for "concrete information that leads directly to the . . . imprisonment of a chief executive officer of one of America's Fortune 500 corporations for criminal activity relating to corporate operations."

The same offer is being extended to 13,000 journalists who, Rifkin says, "are generally reluctant to investigate major business leaders because of recrimination by publishers and station owners."

Ignoring the fact that many American revolutionaries, including George Washington, were wealthy ladowners, and many Tories were not rich, PBC portrays the American revolution as a class struggle between rich and poor.

This simplifed view of history has dismayed even younger, liberal historians. "I happen to agree with tham that multinational corporations have too much power," said Gary Nash, an UCLA professor.

"But PBC plays fast and loose with history. They use quotes out of context and distort the American Revolution."

PBC began in 1971 as an effort to find roots of leftist ideology in American history. In the late 1960s "the New Left was defeated-oriented," Rifkin has said. "The only winners the New Left had as models were foreigners — Mao, Ho, Castro, Che. But most Americans couldn't identify with a buch of Asian or Caribbean Communists."

So Rifkin and a group of fellow-activists rediscovered the American Revolution.

Young Breed Taking Hold

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

An air of controlled excitement pervades Fishermen's Wharf on Erie Street these days as fishermen prepare for the salmon trolling season which opens at midnight Wednesday.

Gear is getting the final check. New poles are being whipped into shape. Final licks of paint are added.

But illusions of old salts, sucking on clay pipes, are shot down when you walk the wharves.

There's a new breed of west coast fisherman . . . a young one.

John Madden of Parksville is an example. He's deckhand aboat Thor Svendsen's 48-footer Janice-Ann. At 18, he's an old hand at fishing, starting at 13.

At 20, Suzanne Guiguet of 2399 Dalhousie will earn her keep as deckhand aboard Rondi, a 42-foot troller owned by her brother Mark.

There's Ian Horne, who started as a deckhand during the summers when he was a student at Victoria High School. Leaving school, he decided to start out on his own. He's owned the 38-foot Rose II for three years.

Old-timers are still around but they're becoming outnumbered. Often they work for their sons, like Ron Coleman, who has been deckhand aboard his son Peter's Oceanus for four seasons.

It's almost impossible to put a tab on how many are involved in one of British Columbia's largest independent businesses.

Al Meadows of the Pacific Trollers Association says there are about 600 boats in his organization and "upwards of 2,000 trollers" expected to start fishing Thursday. Add to that the number of combination gillnetter-troller boats around and you get an idea of the massive fleet ready for the salmon.

One of the youngest in the fleet has to be Tawny, a 2½-year-old Doberman Pinscher who's been "first deckhand" aboard the 43-foot Cam Jim, owned by her master David Chambers of 467 Lampson, for two years. Chambers says she's never seasick, keeps a watchful eye on the fishing, and has never fallen over the side, except on the odd occasion when she couldn't wait for the lines to be tied up in port.

The new breed of fishermen has no illusions about salmon fishing being a romantic way to earn a living.

"Sometimes we work from 4 a.m. to 11 at night," Horne says. "When you're not fishing, you spend that part of the year repairing what you broke the year before."

Horne says rising costs, especially for servicing equipment, forces fishermen to become astute businessmen if they're to stay in the game.

Steadying sails on some boats and stabilizers on others are a reminder that fishing offshore can be uncomfortable and hazardous.

But the new breed continues to grow.

As Horne put it, "when you love the sea and you're your own man, you have a lot."

'Crass Statement' Under Fire

Fare Hike to Boost Living Cost—Young

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The provincial government should be aware that large increases in the ferry rates will greatly boost the cost of living for Victoria, Mayor Mike Young said today.

He was commenting on a statement by provincial government consultant Leonard Roueche that ferry rates could be more than doubled because Victoria might benefit from having fewer tourists.

"What a crass statement," the mayor said.

Tourist industry spokesmen also reacted angrily.

Young said the tourist industry is the lifeblood of the city, providing excitement and vitality in an area that might otherwise become "as quiet as a mausoleum."

"Even if the tourist industry didn't make a cent it is very important to Victoria. However, it is clear that tourists spend a large amount of money in this area."

Young said he hoped the provincial government would keep in mind the value of the tourist industry plus the cost-of-living factors when it decides on the new ferry rates.

(Transport Minister Jack Davis has hinted the rates will more than double from their present level of $5 per car plus $2 per passenger. Roueche, in a report to Davis, suggested $13 per car in the peak summer season.

Young said prices are higher in some commodities in Victoria than in Vancouver because of ferry rates. If the commercial freight rates are increased, the price of food and appliances will be higher in Victoria.

Costs will also be higher for those who travel to Vancouver frequently on business or to visit friends.

Young said an argument by Roueche that any loss of tourist dollars would be countered by higher spending by local Victorians would not stand up.

"People tend to spend more when they are on holidays than they do at home. Tourists tend to be big spenders and they are welcome in any community."

Roueche had suggested that if ferry rates are high enough fewer Victorians would want to leave the Island and would therefore spend their holidays and their money near their home.

Victoria Visitor Information Centre president Al Frame said today his telephone was ringing all weekend after Roueche's statement appeared in Saturday's Times.

"Everyone in the tourist industry is angry about what Mr. Roueche said."

Frame said hotels, motels and tourist attractions all would be in a precarious position if the tourist flow declined and retail stores could also go broke.

"It is incredible to think that anyone would make such a statement."

Frame said the Visitor Information Centre, which operates the Causeway bureau, calculates that tourists spent $276 million on Vancouver Island last year, about $137 million of it in the Victoria area.

"You can't replace that much money if you reduce the flow of tourists, no matter how much more Victorians spend on the Island. There were 2.25 million visitors to Vancouver Island last year. The population of Vancouver Island is under one million. How can that one million spend as much as the 2.25 million visitors?"

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Jack Hutchins said the tourist industry is highly desirable because it is pollution-free and requires only a small investment by the community.

Hutchins said Roueche was wrong in saying that seasonal employment provided by the tourist industry was not as valuable as year-round jobs offered in other occupations.

The tourist industry provides employment for thousands of university and high school students who otherwise would be idle and could create community problems, Hutchins said.

City Woman, Oak Bay Man Die in Traffic

An elderly Victoria woman and an Oak Bay man were killed in separate traffic accidents at the weekend.

Alice Mabel Saunders, 81, of 215 St. Lawrence, died in Victoria General Hospital at 8:30 p.m. Sunday two hours after she was hit by a car while crossing Belleville and Menzies.

The driver of the car was Maureen Davis, 21, of 540 Rithet, police said.

Mrs. Saunders was the fourth person to die in traffic mishaps in the city this year. An inquest will be held. No date has been set yet.

Frank Gleadow, 55, of 2310 Dunlevy was killed and his wife Peta, 51, critically injured when their car collided head-on with a pickup truck six miles south of Nanaimo at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The driver of the truck, Vernon Mann, 25, and a passenger Ralph Briscoe, 27, both of Cassidy are in Nanaimo General Hospital in fair condition.

Mrs. Gleadow was transferred to Royal Jubilee Hospital where her condition this morning is described as poor.

A third person killed on the Island at the weekend was 18-year-old Kathy Kimmel of Parksville who died from injuries she received when hit by a motorcycle while walking across the Island Highway just south of Parksville on Saturday.

Motorcycle driver Gordon Michael Ward, 17, and passenger Richard West, both of Port Alberni were treated for minor injuries and released from hospital in Nanaimo.

Village Debate Set

Oak Bay Hard Look On April 26

Oak Bay council will debate the future of Oak Bay Village at its next meeting April 26.

This was decided this morning by council's zoning committee after it tried to grapple with a proposed new building at the southwest corner of Oak Bay Avenue and Monterey.

"The whole question of planning of the village will be debated at that time," said committee chairman Ald. John Goult.

The committee was considering a referral from council of a proposal by Danclair Developments Limited for a new building at the corner which would include new premises for the Bank of Montreal.

Representatives of Danclair Developments told the committee the company has purchased the corner property and has entered into a firm contract to buy a separate lot on Monterey, on the opposite side of the street, to provide sufficient parking.

The last committee recommendation was that it would be preferable to have a two-storey rather than a one-storey building and that it be suggested to Danclair Developments that the company acquire one lot on Monterey just south of the senior citizens' centre to comply with parking regulations.

Goult, who missed the last committee meeting, opposed this, saying he never envisaged the spreading of parking down Monterey "and obviously these gentlemen have been encouraged to purchase with that in view."

But Ald. Norm Pimlott said Danclair Developments has not purchased the lot in compliance with the committee's suggestion because it is on the other side of Monterey from the senior citizens centre.

The corner property includes four stores which hold leases. Danclair Developments representatives told the committee the four tenants were offered the right to purchase from the previous owner of the property but the shops declined.

152 GET HELP AT 'BARBERSHOP'

Victoria MLA Charles Barber said today 152 Victorians have been assisted through his Community Service Office since it opened one month ago.

Almost half were senior citizens.

"Many of them wanted help with MinCome and with provincial disability pensions," Barber said.

"Throughout March there were many requests for assistance with income tax."

The office at 1020 Blanshard Street is operated by 20 volunteers and provides a free service to local residents.

Included in the 152 requests for help were 12 on ICBC problems, 17 on pensions, 12 on unemployment insurance questions, 15 on medical questions, 19 for landlord and tenant help, 16 on employment and 76 requests for general information.

Suppose There Was No Yellow Ribbon?

WE WERE WATCHING A squadron of black brant whip in from the Strait when my wife came up with an inconsequential question.

"I wonder if he made it?" Win asked.

The form of ESP that exists between the long-married wasn't working too well at the moment, probably because counting geese on the wing calls for concentration.

"Nineteen in that flight," I said. Then, "Who made it?"

"Him," Win said. She nodded at our pocket radio, which was serving up Rhinestone Cowboy in a low-volume whisper. "I don't think he did."

The brant had executed a neat change of formation and were swinging low over the April-blue shallows. The dreamer in Rhinestone Cowboy, a recent hit song that only the deaf could have missed, was still trudging Broadway with hope in his heart and a subway token in his shoe.

"Sure he made it," I said. The brant flared in a pocket blizzard of dark-and-white for their landing. "A smart agent spotted him and he landed in the big time."

"You missed a couple of stragglers," Win said, watching the brant where they cruised along the tideline. "If he did get his star-spangled rodeo horse and all the rest of it, he soon got tired of it. I think he gave it all up and went back West."

People with occupied minds don't have time to indulge in any such speculative exchange. Or to loaf in the shelter of a screening drift root, watching one of nature's seasonal migrations. But my dear one's term essay was finished and delivered, I had given the final licks to a project of my own, and spring was having its way with us.

More brant showed — a large flock winging purposefully north in column-of-line.

"Take that other song," Win said. "The one where the fellow is coming home from the army or somewhere, and everyone on the bus is cheering because his girl has 'Tied a Yellow Ribbon Round the Old Oak Tree'."

April is a month of migratings and wakings and stirrings. Any time now, the humpback salmon fry would be dropping down the creeks to the salt-chuck, and the hungry trout would be after them. I shifted my thoughts away from the trout to consider what promised to be another iffy question.

"Suppose she hadn't got his letter and there was no ribbon?" my partner said.

"Suppose those brant flipped over and flew upside down?" I said. "Look, I'm getting hungry."

Win fished beach rations in the form of a length of pepperoni sausage from her pocket. She broke the pepperoni in two. We nibbled dreamily, casing the southern horizon for more little black geese.

"Or suppose she'd got married while he was away?" Win said. "Suppose he saw a yellow ribbon and a red ribbon twined together around the tree?"

"Yeah," I said. "With a pink one and blue one under them."

"Or if the old oak tree had been cut down," Win suggested. "I guess he'd just stay on the bus."

The big flight of brant wasn't going to put in. It passed like a fast-moving skein of smoke in the distance, committed to a stage of the journey that would end at its Arctic nesting ground.

"He'd find another girl," Win said.

"Probably," I agreed. "Got anything more to eat?"

But that was the last of the pepperoni. We loafed our way home from a wonderfully profitless day, with a sense of spring achieved strong upon us. It's only on such a day that one can enjoy the silliness of 'Let's suppose' as it applies to a song or to life itself.

Black brant from an earlier visitation had set up overnight housekeeping inside the hook of the home reef. They ducked and dabbled, handsome birds with sturdy necks and dark wings raked sharply aft. We watched them while we gathered armloads of drift-back for our evening fire.

The pocket radio was into Rhinstone Cowboy again. But our Day of Spring was ending, and tomorrow we'd be too occupied with life as it is for supposing.

What Will Beauty Products Be Doing in Year 2001?

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

You know, we got so much mail when we talked about herbal medicine, it would be nice to mention a few more plants and outline how they can help cure your ills.

Let's start with the common dandelion, usually considered just a pesty weed. Dandelion is actually quite useful in the treatment of liver and kidney disorders. the roasted roots may be ground and substituted for coffee, if yellow coffee is your bag.

Ginseng, the "Chinese Panacea," is currently the hottest selling herbal remedy in America. Fifteen grains immediately after meals aid in relieving mental exhaustion. And oats, believe it or not, can be used to treat insomnia. (Some of the sleepy horses we've bet on obviously hadn't had their oats before the race.)

Kelp is an excellent source of iodine for imbalanced diet and is sold already processed in most health food stores.

Pine oil, used as an inhalation is good for bronchitis and laryngitis, and rosemary makes an excellent hairwash.

Literally hundreds of herbs are considered to have medicinal or cosmetic value. If you're interested in getting more deeply involved in the subject, go to your library and have a look at any of the excellent books on the subject, one of which is "Proven Herbal Remedies" by John H. Trobe.

Everybody's talking about what the world will be like in 2001 — economically, ecologically and so on. What would you like to see in the beauty field?

How about a pill to smooth split ends an give everyone a luxurious mane of hair?

A formula to keep skin smooth and wrinkle-free forever?

A diet that is foolproof and painless — and tastes good?

A cream to make freckles disappear?

Everyone has her own wish, and the list could go on forever. Meantime, we have to make do with what we've got.

Dear Jennifer:

I read somewhere about a diet that will improve the condition of the hair and make it grow faster. I'm really interested in this since I made a terrible mistake and had mine cut off.

Do you know anything about such a diet? — Sarah H.

Ask Jennifer

Dear Sarah:

What you eat is always important to skin, hair and general health, of course. But I can't give you any special diet that will go straight to your head. Nor can I give you a diet that will make your hair grow faster. What I can tell you about is a diet that is good for you from head to toe. Healthy, sensible, and one that will definitely make you look better, give a sheen to the hair and a glow to the cheek.

Eat lots of protein. Your hair is 98% protein, and you can "fatten" it up with meats, fish, fowl, cheese, eggs and milk. Some fat is necessary in the diet to provide gloss and sheen, but don't let that word "fat" make you shudder. If you keep your carbohydrate intake down, it won't make you fat.

Carbohydrate, such as starches and sugar, should be cut back. Sixty grams of carbohydrate a day are recommended. Eating "junk" foods quickly puts that count way over the top. Pick up a carbohydrate count book and do a little studying. Assess your present diet and add up the carbohydrate you take in every day. You will likely be in for a bit of shock.

Vitamin pills of the B-complex group are often recommended for the hair, but if you are eating a balanced diet they should not be necessary. The same goes for wheat germ and brewer's yeast, although the controversy rages and true believers promote it with religious fervor.

Use common sense and don't be misguided into fast solutions that don't work.

One bit of advice that will really work: Next time you have your hair styled, think it over carefully and don't leap into having it lopped off. The only thing that will solve that problem is time.

Dear Jennifer:

My fingernails are thin and fine. I have taken gelatin capsules and used every nail strengthener and hardener I can find. I've worn rubber gloves. Surely someone can come along with a solution!

I manicure my nails every week and file away thin, ragged, breaking edges. They never look any better. What would you suggest?—Muriel T.

Dear Muriel:

I have a revolutionary bit of news to share with you. It goes against everything you've ever heard, yet it's simple and harmless and certainly worth a try.

This advice was passed along to me by a dermatologist who suggested that, instead of filing thin, ragged and fragile nails, cut them with a pair of manicure scissors. Pare off just a fraction of the nail's edge to make a smooth edge. Do it each week and then apply a coating of clear polish over the nail and under the tip.

I'm trying it. You might as well try it, too. You've got nothing to lose!

BANANA—EASIEST INSTANT MEAL

hilda beastall

Rich in vitamins and minerals, packed into its own natural carrying case, the banana is probably the easiest instant meal available to northerners. The avocado runs a neck and neck race for food values, only losing out as an instant food because it cannot be easily consumed straight from its covering skin.

So bananas have everything, including a natural sugar easily digested and convertible to energy of a lasting kind.

On picnics and hikes, bananas in their skins and a plastic bag of ground nuts keep you going for several hours with little carrying weight and nothing except the plastic to bring back.

At home, bananas enter into blender drinks, yogurt sundaes, fruit salads, fruit salad dressing, banana bread, muffins and finally a delicious creamy pie without a crust, or with a crisp crust of blended wheat germ and wheat bran.

While these fruits are still featured in many local markets at eight to 12½ cents for a pound, and much less if you buy well ripened bananas carefully, they make a fine nourishing substitute for local fruits which will be rather scarce for a few weeks.

Rhubarb will be the first local; try layers of sliced bananas alternately with rhubarb previously lightly cooked in a tablespoon of water, juice or half a lemon and one teaspoon of fresh chopped angelica leaf. Sprinkle cooked rhubarb with one teaspoon of sugar on each layer; cover dish and cook in moderate oven at 177 deg. C. for 30 minutes. Angelica and lemon reduce acidity of fruits.

This fruit salad helps to stretch a can of pineapple. The kind that is canned in its own sweet juice without additional sugar has the finest flavor. It can be chunk style or crushed. Crushed seems a greater quantity of fruit than either slices or chunks.

Banana-Pineapple Salad

8 ounce carton 2 per cent cottage cheese.
¼ cup pineapple juice.
4 bananas.
1 can crushed unsweetened pineapple.
chopped raw peanuts.
leaves of green lettuce.

Drain pineapple well, reserving juice in glass jar for later use as a drink or in a sauce for another day's salad.

Add ¼ cup pineapple juice gradually to cottage cheese. Arrange leaf lettuce on 4 plates; peel and cut bananas lengthwise and then across. Arrange in a square; fill centre with crushed pineapple.

Heap cottage cheese in mound in centre; sprinkle with chopped or ground peanuts or sunflower seeds. Serve at once. Serves 4.

This is a salad course and a dessert combined. In fact, it needs only wholewheat buns and Cheddar cheese to make a a complete meal.

A Banana Yogurt Sundae will be a lovely surprise on the first warm day of spring. Far fewer calories than with ice cream and sweetened sauces as is the usual way. Just be sure you have plenty of homemade yogurt in the refrigerator, made from skim milk powder.

Banana Yogurt Sundae

1 banana for each serving.
¼ cup homemade yogurt for each.
1 tsp. sugar or fruit juice.
few grains of ginger.
finely ground nuts.

Peel banana and slice lengthwise. Arrange on fancy plate side by side. Make two mounds of yogurt for each plate, mixing it first with either fruit juice on hand or a little sugar. Use without prefereably, but a tiny bit of sweetening gets some people used to the fresh taste of yogurt. Sprinkle yogurt with few grains ginger, then generously with ground nuts.

Banana Pie

1 tsp. brown sugar.
1 tsp. soft margarine.
2 Tbsp. finely chopped dates.
4 bananas.
2 Tbsp. wholewheat flour.
1 Tbsp. milk (approx.)

Cream sugar and margarine. Chop and crush dates with fork and add to creamed mixture, mashing and smoothing with fork.

Mash bananas with fork and blend with date mixture.

Stir in flour and milk enough to blend all together. Spoon into greased eight-inch pie plate.

Bake in fairly hot oven at 190 deg C. for about 35 minutes or until set. Serve warm or chilled with a mound of homemade yogurt (from skim milk powder) sprinkled with nuts or seeds. serves 4 to 6.

The same pie ingredients and method of preparation makes a pie to put into a nutritious crisp crust of wheat germ and wheat bran. A one-pound bag of bran costs around 29 cents; the wheat germ is 34 cents for a pound. Together with the margarine they are the basic ingredients of Graham Crackers, at a much lower price.

Wheat Germ-Bran Crust For Banana Pie

½ cup wheat germ.
½ cup bran.
2 Tbsp. soft margarine.
few grains of salt.

Melt margarine in 9-inch pie plate; mix wheat germ and bran; spread over the melted margarine bringing it up the sides of the plate. Sprinkle grains of salt lightly over mixture.

When banana-date filling is made, spoon into the pie plate, taking care not to disturb the crumbs.

Bake in fairly hot oven at 19 deg. C. for 35 minutes.

Allow to cool before cutting. Serve with homemade yogurt.

The same crust will serve usefully with any cream pie, or with fresh fruits, but is particularly good with bananas.

Skim Milk Powder Icing

1 tsp. icing sugar
1 tsp. soft margarine
3 Tbsp. instant skim milk powder
½ tsp. cold water

Mix well; use for marking 2 dozen buns when they come from the oven and have been removed to a wire rack to cool. The icing keeps well in a small glass jar with a lid, in refrigerator.

You will eventually have a favorite among these three kinds of rolls from one dough recipe. They are interesting to make and so good to eat that you'll be enjoying them often.

The quantity is not too much for one person living alone to tackle; and the rolls keep well when frozen in the top-of-refrigerator freezer, for three weeks or so, ready to be reheated in a few minutes in a grill or the oven when visitors are with you.

Two Most Common Plumbing Problems

hand around the house

By A. J. HAND

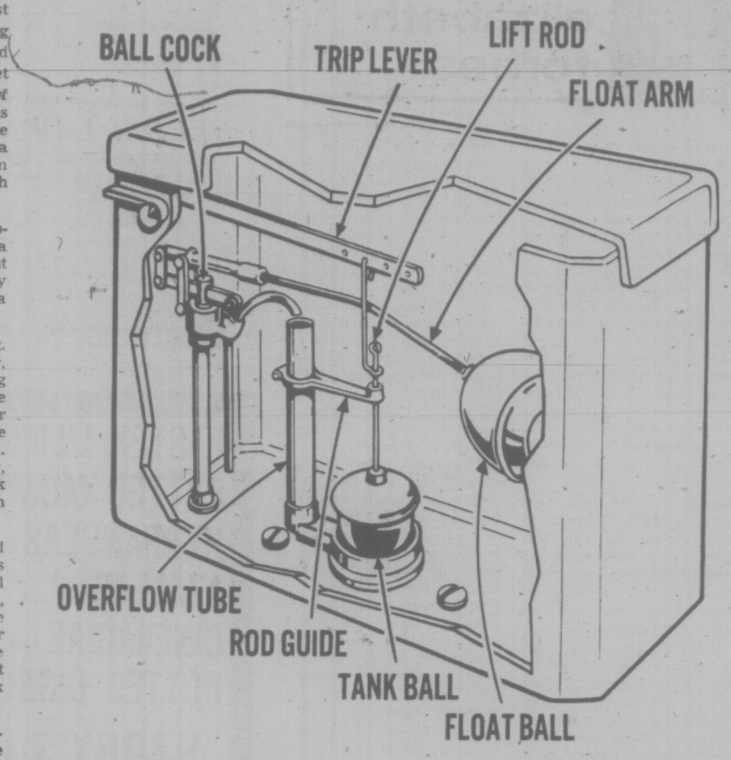
If I had to name the most common home plumbing problem I'd give the award jointly to the dripping faucet and the running toilet. Of these two, the running toilet is the more serious. It can waste hundreds of gallons of water a day, overload a septic system and stain the toilet bowl with rust.

Putting an end to the problem is easy — often just a 30-second campaign without tools. But before you try any fixes, it helps to know how a toilet works:

All the action is in the tank. When you flip the flush lever, the tank ball is lifted, opening the drain beneath it in the bottom of the tank. The water stored in the tank runs out the drain and flushes the bowl. When the tank is nearly empty, the tank ball drops back down, closing off the drain and stopping the flush.

Now the tank begins to fill with water. As the level rises it lifts the float ball. This ball on the end of the float arm, controls a valve called the ball cock. When the water level in the tank reaches the proper point, the rising float ball shuts off the ball cock and the tank stops filling.

Okay, that's how it's supposed to work. Here are the two common problems and their fixes:



1—Water runs continuously and the tank won't fill. The problem here is that the tank ball is not closing off the drain at the end of the flush. Remove the cover to the tank and take a look. Is the tank ball hanging above its seat? If so, see what is holding it up. The lift rod may be binding in its guide, or it may be hanging up where it hooks onto the trip lever.

If the tank ball is not hanging up, maybe it is not centred on its seat. If so, twist the rod guide on the overlow tube so that the tank ball seats properly. If the tank ball is seated properly yet the tank still won't fill, check the ball for wear or buildups of rust. Do the same for the seat. Remove rust with fine sandpaper, replace worn or damaged parts.

Note: Some toilets may have a flapper instead of a tank ball, and a chain instead of lift rods. If so, the problem may be a misaligned or worn flapper or a kinked chain.

2—Tank fills, but water keeps running. This is often caused by a waterlogged float ball. Lift up on the float arm. If the water stops flowing, screw the float ball off its arm and see if its waterlogged. Water inside? Replace it with a foam ball. This type won't go bad.

If lifting the float arm doesn't stop the flow of water, jiggle the arm up and down a few times. This may dislodge corrosion that's making the ball cock stick open. If jiggling the arm doesn't make the valve shut when you again lift on the arm, the ball cock is bad and needs replacement. It's a good idea to replace it with the Fluidmaster ball cock, a modern improvement over the old type. It comes with installation instructions.

3—One last possibility: If ball cock and float are okay, the water level may be too high. Is water flowing out the overflow tube? If so, bend the float arm down. Flush and watch the tank refill. The water should stop flowing when the water reaches the "water level" mark inside the tank (or about ¾ inch below the top of the overflow tube).

Days Not Long Enough For Cancer Researcher

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike:
I've heard conflicting reports on this new "instant antifreeze." It comes in powdered form and mixes with water. Is it any good?—TEMPTED.

Dear Tempted:
It contains salts that might corrode metal and speed electrolytic action between, say, copper and cast iron (your radiator and engine block). I don't at all recommend it.

Dear Mike:
When I tromp the gas in my 1970 Rebel 6, there's a loud pop through the carburetor. This happens hot or cold. If I take off the air-cleaner, a flame shoots up as part of the pop. What causes this, and is it harmful?—POPPA.

Dear Poppa:
Carburetor backfire means a combination of 1) to much raw, unatomized gasoline in the manifold, plus 2) carbon buildup in the cylinder head You shoot gas in at a time when the intake valve is open. Red-hot carbon ignits it, and it pops back through the carb before it gets a chance to enter the combustion chamber. Dangerous? Yes, if it catches the aircleaner element on fire. Solution: adjust the accelerator pump and clean out the carbon by running atomized water into the carb with the engine at about 2000 rmp.

Dear Mike:
A few weeks ago my 1973 Olds started running funny — cutting out, surging, and idling rough. The mechanic at the filling station says it's just that the car needs to be "exercised." He says the 55-mph speed limit lets all sorts of acids and waste products accumulate, and these can be gotten rid of only by driving at higher speeds. I do a lot of intown driving, but the engine does always warm up, and once or twice a week I'm out on the freeway for 50 miles or more. Is my car getting enough exercise?—INTUNE.

Dear In:
I'd say your car's getting enough exercise, because cruising at 55 mph for 50 miles once a week is plenty to get rid of accumulated water vapors, acid, carbon, etc. It's short town hops, when an engine never really warms up, that do the most harm. In those cases, the secret it to change your oil often.

Dear Mike:
Everytime I press the brakes in my 1974 Ford pickup, the front wheels start wobbling. I feel it through the steering wheel. I do not have power steering. What gives?—WOBBLY.

Dear Wobbly:
Check your brake drums for out-of-roundness and scoring.

Dear Mike:
We have a 1974 Plymouth full-sized wagon. Since about a month ago, whenever the tank is filled, there's the odor of gasoline inside the car. We can't see any leaks anywhere. The tank is inside the right rear fender, and it's impossible to check the top of the tank from the inside of the car—I've tried to remove the plastic interior panelling. Any suggestions?

FUMED

Dear Fumed:
Could be loose vapor return hoses or a small hole somewhere toward the top of the tank. Either way, you'll have to remove it, and that's no easy job. You have to drop the spring and axle, then work the tank forward out the rear wheel well. Lots of luck.

The days seem hardly long enough for Dr. Julia Levy, even when she stretches the working hours to 15.

As a professor of microbiology at the University of British Columbia she teaches the full basic course on microbiology and two courses on immunology.

She serves as vice-president of the British Columbia Cancer Control Agency and as a member of one of the grants panel of the National Cancer Institute of Canada. She writes and, last year, saw published a 700-page textbook on microbiology.

Above all else, she is a scientist who spends as much time as possible in the laboratory working on tumor immunology.

She did basic research in immunology until three years ago when she "tuned in on cancer" and says she is now very excited about the work.

Dr. Levy's research work — like many others across Canada — is funded by the National Cancer Institute of Canada through the annual fund-raising campaign of the Canadian Cancer Society which is being held this month

"The basic approach of our research is to study, in animals with tumors, the relationship of the animal's ability to defend itself against a tumor and the development of the tumor. We have found that the vigor of the animal's defence system decreases as the tumors grow, so that in the final stages there is no resistance at all.

"An understanding of how the growth of tumor cells can affect the animal's ability to respond to the tumor may be fundamental to understanding malignant cell growth in humans. Also, any knowledge on how the body's defences are impaired may lead to the development of procedures to reverse the situation.

"At this time our work is directed mainly to understanding the phenomenon," says the scientist.

Among other projects in Dr. Levy's lab, vaccines are being made for a tumor of the bone and for lung cancer although these are not yet for use on humans.

Born in Singapore, where her father was a banker, Dr. Levy came to Canada in 1941 and grew up in Vancouver. She had thought of medicine as a career but in her fourth year of a science course she decided she "wanted to ask questions, not treat patients." She got her degree and then went to the University of London for her doctorate.

She is married to Dr. Edwin Levy, who teaches the philosophy of science at UBC.

"My greatest ambition? To continue to work in immunology and to make a significant contribution in the fight against cancer," she says.

Daily Balance Used as Basis

TORONTO (CP) — Unity Bank of Canada has announced a new service for the small and regular saver which uses the minimum daily balance as the basis of calculating interest rather than the traditional monthly or quarterly minimum.

A condition of the service, called capital account, is that individual depositors maintain a minimum balance of $500.

Bank President T. L. Avison said the service was designed to give the saver more flexibility. "Our new service fills this need by providing interest payments from date of deposit, which encourages programs of regular additions to savings."

Booklet Digs Into Women's Job Problems

LYNNE PEARSON

Throughout this province (particularly in the northern areas) are there limited opportunities for women in employment?

Is this problem sometimes caused by women themselves who take a limited view of the kind of jobs they are willing to do?

Does the problem sometimes rest with job counsellors whose attitudes cause them to direct women into traditional jobs?

Or is the problem sometimes the result of employers not hiring women for certain jobs. When there is an economic slump and high unemployment, do they tend to hire men rather than women.

Leaf through a neat yellow-covered booklet titled Women in British Columbia — Issues, Resources and Services, and you find facs and statistics to answer those questions.

The booklet was compiled by Victoria's Lynne Pearson from material gathered in 1975 when she was in charge of a travelling van program in British Columbia, sponsored by the government of Canada through the International Women's Year secretariat, based in the Privy Council office at Ottawa.

Working with her as field officers were Sheila Purdy, Gillian Smith and Dryme Weavre.

You may remember that a few months back I wrote about that van and how it travelled 11,698 miles and appeared in 91 communities throughout the province.

I told you how it made its way as far north as Fort Nelson and south to the tiny town of Grasmere, close to the United States border.

How it criss-crossed the province from Fernie and Dawson Creek in the east to Bella Coola and the Queen Charlottes in the west.

Now in this neat yellow covered booklet, you can read the results of that tremendously worthwhile journey.

It lists major issues of concern to women in British Columbia, community concerns and contacts in 67 places as well as resource materials and services available for women in the province.

Staff members of the van program talked to over 10,500 people in the 91 communities it visited, outside the lower mainland.

Focus of the whole program, Lynne Pearson writes in an introduction to the booklet was to develop awareness of status of women issues amongst the uninvolved in the province.

"As well, we tried to provide specific information on services and resources to women in isolated areas, to help women's groups link up with each other, and to function as a catalyst for action."

The booklet is a result of those efforts.

It's printing and distribution costs were provided by the Status of Women co-ordinator's office in the provincial secretary's department, before that office was phased out.

It records four major issues of concern to women throughout British Columbia — employment, child care, matrimonial property rights and the image of women.

Employment problems identified most often by women were related to lack of job opportunities, discrimination in hiring, non-equal pay for equal work, difficulties in obtaining training, lack of sensitivity by counsellors an difficulty entering traditionally "male" fields of work.

Linked closely with the problems of employment is the problem of child care, especially in small communities "where there are no child care centres and baby sitting is very much on an ad hoc basis."

Throughout the province, women of all ages spoke to Lynne Pearson and her field officers about their need for more information on their legal rights, and about their concern regarding matrimonial property rights.

"In every part of the province," Lynne writes, "and in every age group, women spoke to van officers about the need for change in our laws so that these laws could better reflect marriage as a partnership."

The fourth area of major concern — image of women — points to the fact that women feel that there are many areas in which they are "put down" and not seen or portrayed as intelligent capable beings who are equal to men.

These include education (school readers and text books); homemaking (lack of respect given women who have chosen to not participate in the labor force but to manage their home and be with their children full time); and the media, "where the image of women in advertising is often that of a fool, shrew, or crafty man-eater."

The section for community concerns and contacts touches on population, issues of concern to the various communities listed, women's rights groups individuals and groups expressing interest in the status of women, the media and other information.

Resources materials cover agriculture, consumer information, day care, educafion, funding, health, human resources, legal, newsletters and other media, status of women, women and work and miscellaneous sources.

Services for women are grouped under bookstores, day care, economics, education, labor, legal, the media, native, general resources, rape, status of women and women's federations.

Lynne Pearson points out in her introduction that while the van acquired information about issues and concerns of women in the 91 communities, it also had "a variety of information on resources and services for women which people found useful."

All this information, both received and given out, is included in the booklet.

Your copy is waiting for you if you write Vancouver Status of Women, 2029 W. 4th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C. V6J 1N3.

THE LIVING WILL . . . WHAT IT MEANS TO ME

DEAR READERS: As I have stated in a previous column, I have signed The Living Will. It is simply a document that a person signs stating that he does not want to have his life prolonged artificially after his physician decides that there is no reasonable hope for recovery. I have given copies of this document to my physician, lawyer, clergyman and to members of my family.

On February 23rd I published the official Jewish view on the right to die with dignity submitted by Rabbi Bernard S. Raskas. On March 15th I published a statement from the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale concerning the Protestant view.

The following letter was received from the Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen:

My dear Abby:

What a joy it was to hear from you, having not had the pleasure of seeing you for such a long while!

In answer to your question, "What is the official Catholic view on the right to die with dignity?" it is not necessary to use extraordinary, artificial means to keep a person alive.

Wishing you every blessing, and with the warmest of personal greeting, I am,

Sincerely yours in our Lord,
FULTON J. SHEEN.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and considered very pretty. I am going steady with a great guy who is 32. We really love each other, and he wants to marry me. The problem is, he is very bald and my mother told me that bald men are always unfaithful to their wives. — HEIDI.

DEAR HEIDI: If you love him — marry him. Most bald men started fooling around when they HAD hair.

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend I was a bridesmaid at the wedding of a close friend.

When it came time for the bride to throw her bouquet, the photographer lined up all the bridesmaids for a picture of the memorable moment. Well, the bride threw her bouquet directly to her younger sister (the maid of honor), and dumb me reached in front of her and intercepted it! Everyone was horrified — especially the bride and her sister.

I suppose I should have known better, but I honestly did it without thinking.

Abby, if the bride wants a certain person to have the bouquet, why bother tossing it? Why not just hand it to her?

I've been severely criticized for what I did, but I honestly did it without thinking. Was I wrong? — SORRY.

DEAR SORRY: Forget it. You acted on impulse.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for the mother of that nut who is suing her for $100,000 for his circumcision. She should countersue for back womb rent.

Symphony Season Ends on Happy Note

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

With tonight's concert at the Royal Theatre the Victoria Symphony Orchestra concludes its 35th and most successful season.

Sunday's audience for the first of the pair was treated to a delightful program which, in a mixture of the humorous and the heroic, proved that so-called serious music doesn't always have to be taken seriously.

Those who have encountered guest artist Gary Karr previously, know that besides being an astonishing virtuoso on his monster fiddle and an expressive artist, he is also in the best sense of the word, an entertainer.

His rapport with Maestro Laszlo Gati, the orchestra and the audience is complete and it is only a pity that the Royal's poor lighting does not permit one to see the artist properly during performance.

Karr begins the early 19th century Dragonetti concerto conservatively, demonstrating a fluent bowing technique and limpid classic style. In the slow movement he is lyrical and expressive, producing a warm, richly colored tone and shapely phrases.

It is with the highly improvisational cadenzas and the scintillating finale however, that Karr reveals his sense of fun, his propensity for lightning the performance with humor, an undertaking in which Gati happily joins.

The Paganini Moses Fantasy is of course a highly virtuosic piece, written originally for Paganini's own violin exploits.

In this Karr gives a performance dazzling in its ease of execution no matter what prodigious feats of fingering and bowing are demanded, including a lengthy passage played in the uppermost reaches of the strings with Karr bent double over his instrument.

For encores — including Scott Joplin's Brandy and Wine, — Karr called out the orchestra's principal bass Ross Lund, to partner him.

Gati and the orchestra were well in the spirit of this lighthearted occasion and accompanied with spirit and style.

Healey Willan's Overture to an Unwritten Comedy, which is exactly what its title implies, proves a bright, melodic and appealing work by the late great Canadian composer, and followed by excerpts from Prokofiev's Love for Three Oranges performed with a buoyant and lively rhythm, makes the program development of the first half quite perfect.

The stirring and heroic portion is the second half, consisting of Ravel's Bolero and Respighi's tone poem, The Pines of Rome.

It is not as completely successful as the first half but it has some awfully good moments, among them the individual woodwind voices that first intone the reiterant Bolero theme, and the steady but subtly handled pulse of the percussion. But there are also some bad moments. Specifically the sourness, on Sunday, in the trombone section in the climactic finale.

For Pines of Rome a much-expanded orchestra includes piano, celeste, organ and extra brass stationed in the pit, a gathering of forces that is deftly handled by Gati and which through most of the work's four scenes is successful in evoking a clear concept of mood and character.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played some three decades ago, our South declarer's play was described as a beautiful "inferential play." In this day and age it would be called a fine example of "card reading." But, however the play might be described, it serves as a good example of expert technique.

NORTH
♠ A J 10 9
♡ 10 5 3
◇ 10 5

WEST
♠ 5 4 2
◇ Q 9 8
♣ K 10 9 8 3

EAST
♠ K
♡ A K Q J 9 8 4
♣ A Q J

SOUTH
♠ Q 8 7 6 3
◇ A K J 6 4 2

East	South	West	North
2 ♡	3 ◇	Pass	Pass
4 ♡	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening Lead: Six of ♡.

East won the opening lead with his heart ace, after which he cashed the ace of clubs. Upon receiving the encouraging ten from his partner, East continued with the club queen, which South ruffed.

A trump was then led, and when West followed suit with the deuce, declarer paused for a few seconds. Finally he put up the ace — and caught East's singleton king. Next came the ace and king of diamonds, after which a third diamond was ruffed in dummy, West's queen falling. The jack and ten of trumps then picked up West's remaining trumps; and the contract was now there for the taking, since South's remaining diamonds were all winners.

Taken out of context, the proper way of playing the trump suit would be to finesse against West's hoped-for king, since the chance of catching East with the singleton king was remote. Why did declarer choose to spurn the finesse?

As declarer expressed it, the answer was found in the interpretation of the East-West bidding and play. First, based on the bidding, West was known to have a poor hand, for he had passed at his first three opportunities to bid. Secondly, assuming that the defenders' play was honest, West had the club king, based on his "come on" play of the ten when East had led the ace of clubs at trick two.

And, thirdly, declarer reasoned that if West had possessed both the king of clubs and the king of spades, he would have taken some action over South's four-spade bid instead of passing. Hence declarer concluded that West just couldn't have the spade king.

Thus declarer's sole hope of avoiding the loss of a trump trick became the outside possibility that East had been dealt the singleton king.

Sam looked at the photo. "So that's Susan. Ten years old, eh?" he commented. "Then how old are you?"

"Figure it out if you want to know," replied Dom. "Take Susan's age from three-quarters of my age and you get half of what adding her age to two-thirds of mine makes."

You try.

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Area approximately 1843 square feet.

GARDENING
hilda beastall

Don't Rush the Season . . .

Only the hardiest of plants that are being grown from seeds sown indoors can be moved out to the garden at this time. Although spring is eww into its annual spree only cool temperature plants are thriving and blooming thus far.

The gardener with unheated greenhouse or covered coldframe will have seedlings of early summer cabbage ready for transplanting outdoors, and leaf lettuce, snapdragons and pansies.

Having been already transferred into either separate small containers of some kind or into wooden flats 12 by 24 inches, any of these plants will now be nice healthy specimens. But they must become gradually accustomed to cooler conditions before being planted into the open garden

If in a coldframe, the cover is opened during the warmest part of the day; then each day the time is lengthened until on a mild night, preferably overcast with a shower or two, the cover is left off entirely.

From then on, barring an unexpected hard frost at dawn, the young plants of hardy kinds mentioned, are safe enough.

The same general method is followed for those now in an unheated greenhouse or unheated porch. The easiest way is to have the frame ready to receive the young plants from the greenhouse or porch. Both places will still be needed for the continued protection of other less hardy seedlings and those still to be sown.

A coldframe is really essential to successful hardening of plants started indoors, but it need not be elaborate. The main object is to give a minimum of protection, less than that provided by the greenhouse or unheated porch.

For this spring purpose, a sloping top is not needed, in fact a very simple box-like structure made from pieces of scrap lumber will suffice.

You do need first to obtain one or two old window sash (frames with glass intact) from a house-wrecking firm so that the cold frame may be built to fit the size of window sash available.

The glass covers retain warmth for many hours after sundown: the temperature drops slowly, whereas plastic loses the heat within half an hour after sunset. Even more important, the temperature drops to equalize with outside conditions. This is often too great a shock for the young plants, especially in the first few hours of being put outside from the indoor environment.

Geraniums, the bedding and pot types, now with strong new growths must also receive this gradually hardening-off process.

They make no further growth outdoors if the weather is cool and may even be harmed by a degree or two of frost in early mornings. They do however need every bit of light, sunshine and air they can be given. Hence the coldframe is the place.

Part of the hardening process of young plants consists of lessening the amount of water given. This results in slowing the production of new growth and the actual hardening of cells in growth already made. No fertilizer of any kind should be given during this period. Allow the soil surface to become dry before giving a smaller than usual amount of water, just enough to prevent wilting.

The coldframe will be used constantly during the next two months by gardeners who raise their annual flowers and vegetables from seed; and also by those who purchase their plants ahead of planting-out time in order to get the kinds needed while supplies at nurseries and garden centres are complete. A further week or two in the frame will be beneficial where the cover can still be put on if late evening should turn out to be completely clear and threaten frost before dawn. On such occasions, that old, home-made coldframe is worth much more than its weight in compost.

FAITH-HEALER SOUGHT AFTER CHURCH TRAGEDY

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Police today sought a faith-healing preacher whose followers stampeded in their newly-inaugurated church, crushing 21 persons to death.

About 5,000 faithful jammed the pink and white church in a Rio suburb Sunday to hear David Miranda, a popular preacher and exorcist who claims to cure the sick by driving out the devil.

But a moment's panic turned the inaugural service into disaster. At the end 21 persons were dead, including five children and 11 women — most of them elderly and several seeking cure for diseases.

Witnesses disagree on what set off the stampede. One woman said a female worshipper suddenly fell into a trance and the crowd backed away from her, knocking over their neighbors and spreading the panic.

Others said worshippers pushed forward when the fiery Miranda, who poses for promotional posters with mounds of discarded crutches, climbed to the church roof to speak because he could not reach the pulpit through the crowd.

Whatever the cause, panic spread in seconds and everyone suddenly rushed toward the narrow door.

Police Chief Eraclio Arco Verde of Sao Goncalo, the Rio suburb where the church is located, said 14 persons died in the crush at the door and another seven died in nearby hospitals.

Miranda, who has radio programs in the states of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, fled the scene shortly after the incident and is being sought by police of both states.

Speculation Aroused Over JFK Relationship

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Times said today disclosures that President Kennedy and two major Mafia figures had close friendships with the same woman had aroused extensive speculation.

In the first of a series of three articles on the subject, the newspaper said the speculation had been stimulated because Mafia figures John Roselli and Sam Giancana maintained the relationship with Judith Campbell (now Mrs. Judith Exener) "at the very time she was having an affair with the president."

Though both men were involved in the Central Intelligence Agency's abortive plots to assassinate Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro, the Times said a report on the plots by the senate select committee on intelligence referred only briefly — slightly more than a page in the 349-page report — to Mrs. Campbell.

In interviews with current and former justice department officials, participants in the CIA plots and underworld figures, the Times had found:

—"Several recommendations were made within the justice department in 1962 for a thorough investigation of Mrs. Campbell's Mafia ties, but no inquiry was every conducted.

—"Sam Giancona and John Roselli boasted to fellow gangsters about sharing the affections of a woman who was seeing the president.

—"While the senate committee found no evidence that president Kennedy knew about the CIA-Mafia plots to kill Castro, the possibility appears high to some former justice officials that Robert F. Kennedy, the attorney general, told his brother about the plots in view of what he learned about the relationships of Giancana, Roselli and Mrs. Campbell in 1962 and early 1963."

Meatcutter Report Due

A mediator's report on bargaining for meatcutters at seven Lower Mainland Woodward stores was expected to be filed today and could trigger a strike at those stores.

Woodward's meat counters in Victoria and four other B.C. centres would not be affected.

Strike votes have been taken at the seven mainland stores, but not at Victoria, Port Alberni, Prince George, Kamloops and Penticton.

Woodward Stores bargains separately from the food chains represented by B.C. Food Industrial Relations Council, which recently settled with meatcutters on the basis of a two-year contract retroactive to last May. It provides for $1 an hour wage hike the first year, 53 cents wages and 23 cents fringes starting May 5, 1976.

Only two points are in dispute, according to Woodward's. Meatcutters want more accumulated time off each week and seven weeks paid vacation after 23 years' service instead of 35 years' service.

The chain said it has offered the union the pat award handed down by the Anti-Inflation Board, plus continuation of Woodward's benefits including 20-minute breaks, discounts on purchases and profit-sharing.

George Johnston, president of the meatcutter's local, Canadian Food and Allied Workers' Union, said members at the seven mainland stores voted 93 per cent to strike of there is no settlement.

He warned that a strike could spread to the other Woodward operations although there has not been a strike vote yet outside Greater Vancouver.

Salt Spring Voters Veto Recreation Site

Salt Spring Island residents may have to consider further fund-raising by the community to provide themselves with a 10-acre recreation site rejected by taxpayers in a close vote Saturday.

Capital Regional District executive director Denis Young said today what appeared to be the only alternative to property being acquired through a one-shot tax levy, coupled with provincial grants.

Residents voted 439-431 against an addition to their property tax rate that would have raised their tax by about $10 and provide the regional district with about $65,000 toward the purchase of the site from Salt Spring Island Lions Coub, which has developed basic tennis, track and football facilities.

Young said the ballots would be checked here within a day or two to confirm the tally from Saturday's vote.

Funds for the Lions project were secured through club activities and community projects that have provided more than $104,000. There had also been donations of equipment, material, surveys and the actual supervision of construction.

Lions still owe $25,800 on the property, and amount that would have been wiped off with approval of the one-year tax levy.

Robbers First In Line

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man and a woman waited an hour for the Super-Valu store at 1650 Davie to open Saturday morning to do their shopping — in the store's safe.

When the doors opened at 9 a.m., the holdup team asked to see the manager who came from the rear of the store and was confronted by the man armed with a handgun.

The manager was told to fill a bag full of money from the safe, then the pair fled with $8,967 in cash and cheques.

Police said the woman had asked an employee reporting for work at 8 a.m. what time the store opened.

Revised Rent For Centre

Oak Bay's finance committee recommended approval Monday for revised room rentals for the Senior Citizens Activity Centre, Henderson Park Recreation Centre, Windsor Park and Carnarvon Park.

Major change, if approved by council, would be to switch per-evening rates to per-hour rates.

An activity room at the senior citizens centre, for example, would be charged for at $5 per two-hour session rather than $10 per evening. Lounges would rent for $5 an hour rather than $25 per evening.

Sean Donovan in his office at The Empress

'Doc' Donovan Prescribes . . .

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Sean Donovan, though not yet a doctor, has been prescribing popular nostrums these past weeks from his office in the lower reaches of a downtown hotel.

His office hours are weird — 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. — and he makes no house calls. His patients are mainly youthful seekers of the appropriate beat, of a rhythm simultaneous to heart and mind and feet.

Donovan wants to be a doctor, physician, M.D., but meanwhile settles for platter and tape manager at Tiffany's in the Empress.

He is resident disc jockey in the recently-opened disco lounge and the prescriptions he lays on are black music.

If this sounds a little bit beyond your grasp, not to worry. Disco is short for discotheque, a 1950s and 60s phenomenon of France, Europe and the U.K. that had a surge of popularity before it died in North America. The name comes from its mmainstay, phono records, or discs, for dancing.

Now they'e back, stronger than ever, to the extent that a bastion of respectability like The Empress has the newest disco in town, enhanced by the charm of leaded glass lampshades and a professional purveyor of canned music.

Donovan's office is an electronic console from which he controls the sound—lots of it — from records and tapes, with embellishment from his own style of patter.

"I put on records, but I love to get into the music and put my two-bits worth in."

To him, this adds a professionalism lacking in similar establishments around town. At one place, for instance, the jock is silent; at another he talks too much.

Black music is a dimension of discos appreciable only to a discomniac or scholar of the ritual contortions that pass today for dancing. Most true disco music is black, Donovan explains, and much is derived through free variation of a 20-year-old theme, the Twist, aided by its Negro stepsister, Rock 'n' Roll.

Latest in this evolution are the Bump and the Hustle, but the generic name is Discotheque. It isn't the Shimmy, it isn't Jive and it certainly isn't Bossa Nova or the Lambeth Walk.

No one seems able to say just what it is, but people do it, especially when there's no cover charge and drinks by the glass are available.

Donovan keeps Tiffany's rocking five hours a night Monday through Saturday. He works for Tri-Tone, of Vancouver, the largest canned music and packaged disco organization in B.C.

"It's sort of in the family," the 20-year-old said. "My brother is a disc jockey in Vancouver — at the Loose Caboose — and he wants to get into radio."

Donovan has attended Simon Fraser University and qualified for an athletic scholarship for wrestling, but decided not to take it up, having been accepted for premedicine at UBC, where he expects to enrol in September.

At Tiffany's he will play about 100 records a night — 70 per cent disco and 30 per cent popular, many by request.

Thursday is big band night, featuring music of the swing era by Glenn Miller, Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey, Les Brown, Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, Stan Kenton, Duke Ellington, Count Basie and the like.

So far the big band sound has been less appealing to clientele than disco and the pops, probably because the whole idea is geared to younger patrons, most of whom were born 20 years too late for swing.

But at least four nights of the week the sound of music at Tiffany's is measured by the cacohony of amplified disco, the swirl and stomp of platform soles and the ringing of the till which can take in more than $1,000 on Friday or Saturday.

Donovan will play the old "slow one" and take a 1-5 minute break twice a shift, but otherwise, "I like to keep them on the floor." That's the name of the disco game.

'BUCKET MOUTHS' JAMMING CBs

TORONTO (CP) — An increasing number of motorists are buying citizens' band radios to keep posted on traffic conditions and to learn how to speak a truckers' dialect which includes terms like bear cave, dead pedal and pregnant roller skate.

Word of the growing trend comes from a truck driving veteran of 18 years nicknamed Deacon — otherwise known as Ted Stevens, editor of Canadian Road Knight, an independent truckers' magazine.

Citizens' band radios — called CBs by truck drivers who have used them since the late 1950s to keep posted on highway conditions and keep occupied during monotonous hours behind the wheel — have become popular among motorists in the last two years, Setevens said in an interview.

A United States television series about two long-distance truck drivers and a recent hit song about a convoy of trucks contributed to the boom, he said.

Some motorists use CBs only to signal for help or to ask directions, but many are discovering they can participate in enthusiastic conversations over the air or use the radios to find out where the bear cares are, Stevens said.

Bear caves, he said, are spots along a highway where police stop to catch speeders. Dead pedals are slow-moving vehicles and pregnant roller skates are Volkswagens.

But truckers are alarmed by the CB craze among persons who talk non-stop on the air and jam the channels with music or profanity, he said, adding that the talkers are called ratchet jaws or bucket mouths.

Truckers seldom use profanity on the air, he said. Typical uncomplimentary comments are to call someone a chicken choker or duck plucker. And CB rules strictly forbid playing music or talking longer than five minutes.

All a motorist needs to set himslef up as an amateur trucker is a radio set and a $13.50 licence from the federal department of communications. An adequate rig costs about $250, including installations Mr. Stevens said.

The 23 channels set aside for CB use are available on a first-come first-served basis, he said, except one channel recognized internationally for the reporting of such emergencies as accidents, fires, lost chicken or other difficulties. Truckers in certain areas gravitate to their own channel, which in southern Ontario has traditionally been Channel 10.

However, to put pressure on the federal communications department to enforce motorists to use CBs according to the rules, he said, southern Ontario truckers plan to move as a group to another channel later this month to show they are organized and want action.

A spokesman for the federal communications department said in an interview there are about 70,000 active CB licences in Ontario. About 29,000 of these — or 40 per cent — were issued between January, 1975 and January, 1976.

Riggs' Son, 22 Found Dead

MANOR HAVEN, N.Y. (AP)—Nassau County police were investigating the death here of James Riggs, 22-year-old son of former tennis star Bobby Riggs, who has made news in recent years by playing match against women pros Billie Jean King and Margaret Court.

Police said the young man was found dead in bed at his apartment Saturday night.

A police spokesman said there was "nothing suspicious at this time" about the death but that the body had been taken for an autopsy. The police homicide squad was conducting an investigation.

Riggs was last seen alive Saturday morning, police said. Another tenant, John Duffy, found him dead in bed Saturday evening.

Another Hughes Ex-Wife Surfaces

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Movie actress Terry Moore has said she was married to billionaire Howard Hughes in the late 1940s, between Hughes' marriages to socialite Ella Rice and actress Jean Peters.

The known facts about Hughes, who died aboard a plane between Acapulco and Houston last Monday, listed only the marriages to Miss Rice, which ended in divorce in 1929, and that to Miss Peters, in 1957.

Miss Moore told interviewers that the marriage lasted eight years, but declined to say where it took place or where they were divorced.

She refused to say if they had any children but said she plans no claim against Hughes estate.

She met Hughes when she was 15, the 47-year-old Miss Moore said.

"I have lost the greatest friend I ever had. Howard raised me. Howard was the greatest lover I eved had. He was the best," she said.

The still shapley actress, once nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in "Come Back Little Sheba," was in Florida for work in a movie.

Everest Claims 35th

KATMANDU — A British marine on a joint British-Nepalese assault on Everest was killed when he fell into a crevasse nearly 22,000 feet up the south face Saturday, the foreign ministry said here today.

The body of the man, 39-year-old Capt. Terry Thompson of Exmouth, Devon, was being brought back to base camp by two members of the expedition who were with him when he fell, the Ministry said.

Thirty-five men are known to have died on the mountain, 20 of them on the dangerous Khumba section.

CHICAGO — Hugh Hefner is stepping down as president of Playboy Enterprises Inc., but will continue to make major policy decisions as board chairman of the multi-million dollar publishing empire, a corporation spokesman said today.

Hefner, who resides in a 30-room Tudor mansion in the exclusive Holmby Hills section of Los Angeles, could not be reached for comment. He founded Playboy in 1953 and owns about 70 per cent of Playboy Enterprises stock.

STAMFORD, Conn. — Victoria Fyodorova Pouy, the Soviet actress who came to the United States to be reunited with her ailing father and wound up marrying a pilot, is expecting a baby next month and wants her mother to be with her for the birth.

"I need her like the air, like the sun," Mrs. Pouy said in an interview Saturday.

TOKYO — A drunken plumber attending a cherry blossom viewing party in southern Japan suffered light injuries when he entered a hippopotamus cage and dived into a pool shared by two female hippos, police said today.

A police spokesman said Hideyuki Sato was hospitalized with minor cuts and bruises after he was found unconscious and wearing only his shorts in the hippo cage of an amusement park in Oita City on the southern island of Kyushu.

BALTIMORE — Clara Perseano, 76, lost her savings when a bank failed during the depression, so she refused to trust the financial institutions.

Now she has lost her savings again, this time to robbers.

The widow and her 79-year-old brother-in-law, Adam Perseano, were robbed of more than $40,000 Friday when two delivery men turned out to be thieves.

Mrs. Perseano told police the pair broke open a safe hidden in a closet and took $34,500 in cash, a $50 U.S. savings bond, and 55 $100 bonds.

Victim Identified

10% Rate Hike Seen As Truckers Settle

A 10 per cent increase in B.C. truck freight rates has been predicted by Irwin Froesse, spokesman for 97 transport companies, in the wake of the three-week Teamsters Union strike-lockout.

B.C.'s 4,500 truckers and warehousemen returned to work today after approving a new wage contract which includes a 36 per cent pay increase over two years.

The Teamsters had been off the job since March 23 in a strike-lockout involving 97 companies.

The award includes retroactive pay to Jan. 1 but it will not be collected until the federal Anti-Inflation Board rules o nthe validity of the contract. If the award is rolled back, the retroactive pay will be reduced a corresponding amount. At present it appears to average about $700 per employee.

Froesse said the higher trucking rates will be necessary to pay the costs of the wage increase. He said the tie-up cost the companies $15 million in lost business and the unions about $4 million in lost wages.

In Victoria, Johnston Terminals Ltd. manager Herb Harris said all 76 employees were back on the job today and the local backlog of freight will be cleared away in three or four days. He said the dispute was costly for both sides.

The agreement calls for an increase of 95 cents an hour in the first year plus 20 cents in fringe benefits. It gives an increase of 90 cents in the second year, 15 cents in fringe benefits and five cents an hour in vacation benefits. Base rate in the previous contract was $6.50 an hour.

The pact gives the Teamsters 10 cents more an hour than had been offered by the companies before the strike-lockout.

The Teamsters voted 84.6 per cent in favor of the new contract Sunday. Union officials said they expected the anti-inflation board will approve the settlement but they did not explain their reasoning.

HOCKEY BRAWL CHARGES EYED

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Criminal charges were being studied here today in the aftermath of a bench-clearing brawl in a World Hockey Association playoff game between Calgary Cowboys and Quebec Nordiques Sunday night.

At 6:16 of the first period, Calgary's Rick Jodzio flattened WHA scoring champion Marc Tardif of Quebec with a high stick after a 30-foot charge. Jodzio then started pounding Tardif with a flurry of punches, knocking him unconscious.

When Pierre Roy of Quebec went to Tardif's aid, both benches cleared and an ugly fight took place.

While the brawl went on, Tardif was carried off the ice on a stretcher and taken to hospital for x-rays. About 20 policemen stepped on the ice during the brawl but did not intervene. Ten players were ejected from the game by referee Steve Dowling following the incident. The referee also sent both teams to the dressing room for a cooling-off period. (See story page 10.)

SPORTS

Victoria Cougars are in hiding today and it's not because they are having trouble in their Western Canada Hockey League playoff with Medicine Hat Tigers. They're doing just fine, leading the six-point series 5-1 after a 5-4 victory Sunday, but owner-coach Pat Ginnell apparently feels the Cats will benefit from seclusion. Page 10.

Goalie Gilles Gilbert got "respect" and responded with a superb effort Sunday as Boston Bruins blanked Los Angeles Kings in one of three opening games in Stanley Cup hockey quarter-finals. Ken Dryden was also slick in the nets as Montreal shut out Chicago and Buffalo's "French Connection" line sent New York Islanders down to defeat. Page 10.

Only young Ben Crenshow was able to mount even a token challenge to Ray Floyd in Sunday's final round of the famed Masters' golf tournament at Augusta, Ga. But Ben's bid was much too little and much too late as Floyd breezed to an eight-stroke victory, matching the Masters record of 17 under par. Page 11.

While the sun shone at Augusta, puddles on the greens at Victoria Golf Club after heavy rains Sunday morning resulted in postponement of first-round matches in the Vancouver Island Open golf tournament. Page 11.

San Francisco Giants, who barely escaped being shifted to another city early this year, have found new fan support and old-time success on the field. In their first two games of the young major league baseball season, the Giants have attracted 62,000 fans and beaten Los Angeles Dodgers twice. Page 10.

We'll Topple Trudeau —Labor

TORONTO (CP) — Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers predicted Sunday that labor will topple the Trudeau government in the union's battle against wage controls.

Addressing a UAW policy meeting, he said a one-day general strike across Canada may be called to protest the controls.

McDermott, a vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, is the first labor leader to call publicly for a general strike against the government's anti-inflation controls.

He said that before a March 22 meeting in Ottawa of about 15,000 trade unionists, he was skeptical of the Canadian labor movement's ability to mobilize in a cause.

"I didn't think we had the capability," he said. "I was wrong. The pendulum has swung.

"In my opinion, we have the capability for a general strike and, before this is over, that is a distinct possiblity."

He said the "ineptitude, brutality and injustice" of the federal anti-inflation board has contributed to labor's deepening antipathy to the controls program."

"I don't know who makes decisions for the board," he said. "It's not chairman Jean-Luc Papin. He's out making speeches every afternoon and evening.

A WEEKEND "SPECIAL" on prehistoric hardware was offered by the Capital Iron store to a dedicated group of bargain hunters on Saturday and Sunday. Demotion of the firm's Store Street quonset hut last week revealed that the site was once an ancient Indian settlement. The Provincial Museum made hurried arrangements for a weekend dig on the site by a group of volunteers, who unearthed a number of hunting and domestic implements including projectile points, adze blades and abrasive stones. Bulk of the deposit was a midden containing native oyster, mussel and clam shells.

Scandals, Uncertainty Force Lira to Plunge

Times News Services

The lira dropped to a record low on the Milan foreign exchange market today.

Amid increasing concern over the political situation, the Italian currency dropped one per cent to 891-894 against the United States dollar from 879-891 at Friday's close.

The shaky Christian Democrat minority government was hit Sunday with new corruption allegations involving up to $24 million in bribes from three oil companiies.

Reports in three London newspapers alleged that Esso, Shell and British Petroleum bribed Christain Democrats and members of its three centre-left coalition partners in 1971 and 1972 for tax rebates and other favorable treatment.

One document, purported to come from Italian magistrates who have been investigating the case since the allegations — naming only Esso — originated in Washington two years ago.

The document listed former Christain Democratic premiers Giulio Andretti and Mariano Rumor as among person "into whose accounts the money was paid."

Andreotti and Rumor are budget and foreign ministers respectively in the Moro government. Andreotti appeared under the code name Anderson and Rumor as Raymond, the papers said.

The previous low was set March 17 when the lira was quoted at 887-889.

It now seems inevitable that early elections will be held in mid-June, and these could make the Communists Italy's biggest single party.

The only question for political observers here is how soon the current minority government of Christian Democrat Prime Minister Aldo Moro will collapse.

Leaders of the ruling Christian Democratic party rejected Communist party leader Enrico Berlinguer's demand for a voice in decisions by Moro's government.

Moro was expected to ask President Giovanni Leone to dissolve parliament at the end of April or a week later, with the election to follow June 13 or 20.

The U.S. dollar opened lower on some European money markets today while the pound recovered slightly.

Beirut Turns Quiet After Violent Night

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Free-for-all fighting that raged through Beirut and its suburbs all night died down early today, sparking hopes the country's latest truce might again take hold. On the eastern front, Syrian armored columns were reportedly advancing through the Bekaa Valley.

The lastest battles erupted Sunday despite a leftist agreement to extend the 10-day-old cease-fire until the end of the month.

Mortar, rocket and artillery duels between leftist and right-wing militia factions left at least 35 dead and 55 wounded in Beirut. The sounds of battle, which echoed across the city all night, finally died away in the worst suburban troublespots early this morning.

The fighting broke out almost immediately after leftwing parties meeting under Socialsit leader Kamal Jumblatt issued a statement accused Syria of invading Lebanon and the United States with meddling where it was not wanted.

PROGRAM LAUDED . . . BUT IT WAS DROPPED

Health minister Bob McClelland praised the Red Cross without realizing that one of the programs he pinpointed had been chopped for lack of funding from his government.

Speaking on the weekend to the annual meeting of the B.C.-Yukon division of Canadian Red Cross, McClelland included the swimming program for disabled persons, supported by the human resources department, in his list of worthwhile undertakings.

The program received $24,000 from the provincial government last year, but was dropped this year when the government decided against funding it.

LEGAL ACTION EYED ON 'STOLEN' PAPERS

The government may consider taking legal action against former NDP Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk to retrieve files taken by the MLA after his government was defeated.

Socred Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said today he does not intend to let the matter drop and added: "we may have to go to court."

Phillips accused Lauk of stealing government files in December shortly after the NDP were defeated. He later withdrew the word "stealing" but still contends the files were not Lauk's property to take.

Serjit Olaizola, secretary to Lauk and now Phillips, told reporters Lauk ordered her to pack up all the files in the minister's office and take them to his home in Vancouver.

She said they did not contain personal material but all ministerial correspondence and materjals.

Lauk said copies of all correspondence can be found within the department or other government agencies and argues it is common practice for outgoing governments to take such information with it.

"That material belongs to the people of B.C.," said Phillips today.

"I will continue to ask for the files back and do not intend to stop asking for them back," he said.

"I guess if we wanted to take a legal route we could do that and its not beyond the realm of possibility."

Levi Raps NDP Members For SC Welfare Leanings

RICHMOND (CP) — Former New Democratic Party human resources minister Norma Levi has criticized members of his own party for sympathizing with Social Credit welfare policies.

Levi told a Richmond NDP social evening audience that party members should be defending welfare recipients, who, he said, are being exploited by human resources minister Bill Vander Zalm.

When he was human resources minister, "I got some of the dirtiest, snottiest letters about welfare recipients from NDP members," he said.

Levi said he has no apologies for his handling of the portfolio.

"If anybody comes to me and tells me I did too much for people on welfare I'll tell them to go to hell. There's no need to be defensive about that at all."

Hijackers Can't Stay

KARACHI (UPI) — A Philippine Airlines jetliner carrying three Moslem hijackers and five hostages landed at Karachi International airport today but Pakistani authorities refused to allow the plane to stay overnight.

Pakistani authorities, reversing an original decision, granted landing rights on "humanitarian and compassionate grounds," officials said. The airline touched down at dawn following a five-hour flight from Bangkok, where the gunmen and hostages had been stranded for three days.

But a civil aviation source said the government was not able to grant a request by airline vice-president Rafael Igoa, one of the hostages on the plane, for an overnight stay due to "security reasons."

The source said 13,000 gallons of fuel were supplied to the aircraft and the crew had drawn up a flight plan to fly from here to Benghazi, Libya.

Igoa told him (a Philippine ataache) the hijackers will release the hostages when the aircraft reaches Benghazi. Igoa did not complain about the hijackers' treatment of the hostages.

Hydro Estimate Rapped

NELSON (CP) — Former resources minister Bob Williams (NDP — Vancouver East) says that British Columbia Hydro is at least 30 per cent too high in its projections for the province's energy demands.

Williams said in a weekend speech that while he was in office, three separate reviews concluded that Hydro's projections that a 9.2 per cent annual increase in energy output was needed were at least 30 per cent too high.

Williams, speaking at the annual meeting of the Nelson-Creston NDP Association, said that now despite the studies, Hydro Chairman Robert Bonner is claiming that the original estimates are 30 per cent too low.

The former resources minister also criticized the emphasis the Crown-owned Hydro is putting on dam construction. Williams said it now is obvious that the Social Credit government has decided to shelve the Hat Creek thermal power project in south-central B.C.

He said that each of the two Hat Creek coal deposits contains energy equivalent to that supplied by the W. A. C. Bennett Dam, and, in less than 10 years, could supply the province with needed energy for a saving of more than a billin dollars in capital expenditures.

Nanaimo Strike Firmed

NANAIMO (CP) — Members of Canadian Union of Public Employees, local 401, voted Sunday to go on strike in support of contract demands.

Local 401 members employed by the Nanaimo Regional District voted 69 per cent in favor of striking while local members who work for parks and recreation voted 96 per cent in favor of striking and Nanaimo civic workers voted 84 per cent for striking. Last month, Ladysmith civic workers, members of 401, voted 80 per cent in favor of striking. There are 270 members in the local.

Local 401 is one of three CUPE locals involved in disputes with employers belonging to the Mid-Island Public Employers' Association. The local 401 members have already been locked out because of the strike by the 228 members of local 606, against the Nanaimo School Board, which has closed area schools since last Monday.

The 82 members of the third CUPE group, local 1858 at Malaspina College, have voted 85 per cent in favor of striking but have not served strike notice.

Final exams at the college are to start later this week.

The CUPE contracts expired Dec. 31. Negotiations, including talks with provincial mediator Clark Gilmour, failed to resolve several issues. Wages were not discussed.

Local 606 president Nick Mieras says the dispute centres on the employers' desire to remove a cost-of-living clause from the contract, reduce the number of statutory holidays and disregard seniority except in matters of layoff or recall.

Fish Fever!

Young Breed Taking Hold

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

An air of controlled excitement pervades Fishermen's Whaft on Erie Street these days as fishermen prepare for the salmon trolling season which opens at midnight Wednesday.

Gear is getting the final check. New poles are being whipped into shape. Final licks of paint are added.

But illusions of old salts, sucking on clay pipes, are shot down when you walk the wharves.

There's a new breed of west coast fisherman . . . a young one.

John Madden of Parksville is an example. He's deckhand aboat Thor Svendsen's 48-footer Janice-Ann. At 18, he's an old hand at fishing, starting at 13.

At 20, Suzanne Guiguet of 2399 Dalhousie will earn her keep as deckhand aboard Rondi, a 42-foot troller owned by her brother Mark.

There's Ian Horne, who started as a deckhand during the summers when he was a student at Victori High School. Leaving school, he decided to start out on his own. He's owned the 38-foot Rose II for three years.

Old-timers are still around but they're becoming outnumbered. Often they work for their sons, like Ron Coleman, who has been deckhand aboard his son Peter's Oceanus for four seasons.

It's almost impossible to put a tab on how many are involved in one of British Columbia's largest independent businesses.

Al Meadows of the Pacific Trollers Association says there are about 600 boats in his organization and "upwards of 2,000 trollers" expected to start fishing Thursday. Add to that the number of combination gillnetter-troller boats around and you get an idea of the massive fleet ready for the salmon.

One of the youngest in the fleet has to be Tawny, a 2½-year-old Doberman Pinscher who's been "first deckhand" aboard the 43-foot Cam Jim, owned by her master David Chambers of 467 Lampson, for two years. Chambers says she's never seasick, keeps a watchful eye on the fishing, and has never fallen over the side, except on the odd occasion when she couldn't wait for the lines to be tied up in port.

The new breed of fishermen has no illusions about salmon fishing being a romantic way to earn a living.

"Sometimes we work from 4 a.m. to 11 at night," Horne says, "When you're not fishing, you spend that part of the year repairing what you broke the year before."

Horne says rising costs, especially for servicing equipment, forces fishermen to become astute businessmen if they're to stay in the game.

Steadying sails on some boats and stabilizers on others are a reminder that fishing offshore can be uncomfortable and hazardous.

But the new breed continues to grow.

As Horne put it, "when you love the sea and you're your own man, you have a lot."

'Crass Statement' Under Fire

Fare Hike to Boost Living Cost—Young

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The provincial government should be aware that large increases in the ferry rates will greatly boost the cost of living for Victoria, Mayor Mike Young said today.

He was commenting on a statement by provincial government consultant Leonard Roueche that ferry rates could be more than doubled because Victoria might benefit from having fewer tourists.

"What a crass statement," the mayor said.

Tourist industry spokesmen also reacted angrily.

Young said the tourist industry is the lifeblood of the city, providing excitement and vitality in an area that might otherwise become "as quiet as a mausoleum."

"Even if the tourist industry didn't make a cent it is very important to Victoria. However, it is clear that tourists spend a large amount of money in this area."

Young said he hoped the provincial government would keep in mind the value of the tourist industry plus the cost-of-living factors when it decides on the new ferry rates.

(Transport Minister Jack Davis has hinted the rates will more than double from their present level of $5 per car plus $2 per passenger. Roueche, in a report to Davis, suggested $13 per car in the peak summer season.

Young said prices are higher in some commodities in Victoria than in Vancouver because of ferry rates. If the commercial freight rates are increased, the price of food and appliances will be higher in Victoria.

Costs will also be higher for those who travel to Vancouver frequently on business or to visit friends.

Young said an argument by Roueche that any loss of tourist dollars would be countered by higher spending by local Victorians would not stand up.

"People tend to spend more when they are on holidays than they do at home. Tourists tend to be big spenders and they are welcome in any community."

Roueche had suggested that if ferry rates are high enough fewer Victorians would want to leave the Island and would therefore spend their holidays and their money near their home.

Victoria Visitor Information Centre president Al Frame said today his telephone was ringing all weekend after Roueche's statement appeared in Saturday's Times.

"Everyone in the tourist industry is angry about what Mr. Roueche said."

Frame said hotels, motels and tourist attractions all would be in a precarious position if the tourist flow declined and retail stores could also go broke.

"It is incredible to think that anyone would make such a statement."

Frame said the Visitor Information Centre, which operates the Causeway bureau, calculates that tourists spent $276 million on Vancouver Island last year, about $137 million of it in the Victoria area.

"You can't replace that much money if you reduce the flow of tourists, no matter how much more Victorians spend on the Island. There were 2.25 million visitors to Vancouver Island last year. The population of Vancouver Island is under one million. How can that one million spend as much as the 2.25 million visitors?"

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Jack Hutchins said the tourist industry is highly desirable because it is pollution-free and requires only a small investment by the community.

Hutchins said Roueche was wrong in saying that seasonal employment provided by the tourist industry was not as valuable as year-round jobs offered in other occupations.

The tourist industry provides employment for thousands of university and high school students who otherwise would be idle and could create community problems, Hutchins said.

City Woman, Oak Bay Man Die in Traffic

An elderly Victoria woman and an Oak Bay man were killed in separate traffic accidents at the weekend.

Alice Mabel Saunders, 81, of 215 St. Lawrence, died in Victoria General Hospital at 8:30 p.m. Sunday two hours after she was hit by a car while crossing Belleville and Menzies.

The driver of the car was Maureen Davis, 21, of 540 Rithet, police said.

Mrs. Saunders was the fourth person to die in traffic mishaps in the city this year. An inquest will be held. No date has been set yet.

Frank Gleadow, 55, of 2310 Dunlevy was killed and his wife Peta, 51, critically injured when their car collided head-on with a pickup truck six miles south of Nanaimo at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The driver of the truck, Vernon Mann, 25, and a passenger Ralph Briscoe, 27, both of Cassidy are in Nanaimo General Hospital in fair condition.

Mrs. Gleadow was transferred to Royal Jubilee Hospital where her condition this morning is described as poor.

A third person killed on the Island at the weekend was 18-year-old Kathy Kimmel of Parksville who died from injuries she received when hit by a motorcycle while walking across the Island Highway just south of Parksville on Saturday.

Motorcycle driver Gordon Michael Ward, 17, and passenger Richard West, both of Port Alberni were treated for minor injuries and released from hospital in Nanaimo.

Village Debate Set

Oak Bay Hard Look On April 26

Oak Bay council will debate the future of Oak Bay Village at its next meeting April 26.

This was decided this morning by council's zoning committee after it tried to grapple with a proposed new building at the southwest corner of Oak Bay Avenue and Monterey.

"The whole question of planning of the village will be debated at that time," said committee chairman Ald. John Goult.

The committee was considering a referral from council of a proposal by Danclair Developments Limited for a new building at the corner which would include new premises for the Bank of Montreal.

Representatives of Danclair Developments told the committee the company has purchased the corner property and has entered into a firm contract to buy a separate lot on Monterey, on the opposite side of the street, to provide sufficient parking.

The last committee recommendation was that it would be preferable to have a two-storey rather than a one-storey building and that it be suggested to Danclair Developments that the company acquire one lot on Monterey just south of the senior citizens centre to comply with parking regulations.

Goult, who missed the last committee meeting, opposed this, saying he never envisaged the spreading of parking down Monterey "and obviously these gentlemen have been encouraged to purchase with that in view."

But Ald. Norm Pimlott said Danclair Developments has not purchased the lot in compliance with the committee's suggestion because it is on the other side of Monterey from the senior citizens centre.

The corner property includes four stores which hold leases. Danclair Developments representatives told the committee the four tenants were offered the right to purchase from the previous owner of the property but the shops declined.

152 GET HELP AT 'BARBERSHOP'

Victoria MLA Charles Barber said today 152 Victorians have been assisted through his Community Service Office since it opened one month ago.

Almost half were senior citizens.

"Many of them anted help with MinCome and with provincial disability pensions," Barber said.

"Throughout March there were many requests for assistance with income tax."

The office at 1020 Blanshard Street is operated by 20 volunteers and provides a free service to local residents.

Included in the 152 requests for help were 12 on ICBC problems, 17 on pensions, 12 on unemployment insurance questions, 15 on medical questions, 19 for landlord and tenant help, 16 on employment and 76 requests for general information.

Suppose There Was No Yellow Ribbon?

WE WERE WATCHING A squadron of black brant whip in from tthe Strait when my wife came up with an inconsequential question.

"I wonder if he made it?" Win asked.

The form of ESP that exists between the long-married wasn't working too well at the moment, probably because counting geese on the wing calls for concentration.

"Nineteen in that flight," I said. Then, "Who made it?"

"Him," Win said. She nodded at our pocket radio, which was serving up Rhinestone Cowboy in a low-volume whisper. "I don't think he did."

The brant had executed a neat change of formation and were swinging low over the April-blue shallows. The dreamer in Rhinestone Cowboy, a recent hit song that only the deaf could have missed, was still trudging Broadway with hope in his heart and a subway token in his shoe.

"Sure he made it," I said. The brant flared in a pocket blizzard of dark-and-white for their landing. "A smart agent spotted him and he landed in the big time."

"You missed a couple of stragglers," Win said, watching the brant where they cruised along the tideline. "If he did get his star-spangled rodeo horse and all the rest of it, he soon got tired of it. I think he gave it all up and went back West."

People with occupied minds don't have time to indulge in any such speculative exchange. Or to loaf in the shelter of a screening drift root, watching one of nature's seasonal migrations. But my dear one's term essay was finished and delivered, I had given the final licks to a project of my own, and spring was having its way with us.

More brant showed — a large flock winging purposefully north in column-of-line.

"Take that other song," Win said. "The one where the fellow is coming home from the army or somewhere, and everyone on the bus is cheering because his girl has 'Tied a Yellow Ribbon Round the Old Oak Tree'."

April is a month of migratings and wakings and stirrings. Any time now, the humpback salmon fry would be dropping down the creeks to the salt-chuck, and the hungry trout would be after them. I shifted my thoughts away from the trout to consider what promised to be another iffy question.

"Suppose she hadn't got his letter and there was no ribbon?" my partner said.

"Suppose those brant flipped over and flew upside down?" I said. "Look, I'm getting hungry."

Win fished beach rations in the form of a length of pepperoni sausage from her pocket. She broke the pepperoni in two. We nibbled dreamily, casing the southern horizon for more little black geese.

"Or suppose she'd got married while he was away?" Win said. "Suppose he saw a yellow ribbon and a red ribbon twined together around the tree?"

"Yeah," I said. "With a pink one and blue one under them."

"Or if the old oak tree had been cut down," Win suggested. "I guess he'd just stay on the bus."

The big flight of brant wasn't going to put in. It passed like a fast-moving skein of smoke in the distance, committed to a stage of the journey that would end at its Arctic nesting ground.

"He'd find another girl," Win said.

"Probably," I agreed. "Got anything more to eat?"

But that was the last of the pepperoni. We loafed our way home from a wonderfully profitless day, with a sense of spring achieved strong upon us. It's only on such a day that one can enjoy the silliness of 'Let's suppose' as it applies to a song or to life itself.

Black brant from an earlier visitation had set up overnight housekeeping inside the hook of the home reef. They ducked and dabbled, handsome birds with sturdy necks and dark wings raked sharply aft. We watched them while we gathered armloads of drift-back for our evening fire.

The pocket radio was into Rhinstone Cowboy again. But our Day of Spring was ending, and tomorrow we'd be too occupied with life as it is for supposing.
